THE WINDUP 1965

Steve:

Wow are you lucky to get all this extra room in your yearbook. I've enjoyed being in your English class for two years and cheating off of your papers - since you are so smart, of course! Do you believe Mr. Collins? - imagine, an English teacher that shaves his nose - tsk, tsk. Seriously - I wish you the best of luck in college next year and I promise to vote for you when you run for president.

Always -
Lisa

Although Walter Johnson's nine years of a winning streak have included awards in academics and sports, the most significant aspect of this time span lies in the qualities developed in the students. Personifying the spirit of success, they not only earn for the school a reputation of excellence, but also acquire worth of self that continues into the future.

During the three years of school here, each individual sorts out those attitudes which determine his future outlook. From his teachers and the administration he gains lasting inspiration, from his classroom experiences he gains unfolding perspective of himself as an individual, and from his participation in school activities he gains maturity and control.

9 Years of a Winning Streak:

Lasting Inspiration

Education is development of mental awareness which may always change but which must arrive at goals along the way. The attainment of these goals depends not only on immediate achievement, but on the state of mind which the student carries into his future. The policy set by the School Board, the environment established by administrators, and the challenging zest of the classroom focus on the student to give him opportunities for learning and growing. It is the faculty who determine the academic tenor of the school. Through inspiration from teachers, classes grow in intellectual depth. Developing in each student a use of judgment, a flexibility of spirit, an achievement of goal, and a sensitivity to his surroundings, the effects of a provocative class will continue to stimulate him to learning. This inspiration lasts as one of the solid bases for Walter Johnson's winning streak.

To Ballast Community

English Supervisor, Miss Katherine Greaney introduces Yale professor.

Mr. Henry C. Gregory, former WJ principal, is the connecting link among the 14 schools under his supervision as Director of Area 10 and the Montgomery County Superintendent of Schools. He and Mr. Patton discuss plans for the new Math Conference Room.

Board's More Conservative Majority Sends Back 3 Liberals for Education

Re-elected to the School Board, liberal Dr. Clifford Beck with Mr. William Saunders who was elected president, replacing Mr. William Coyle.

When students returned to school last fall, a new man directed their education. Early last August Dr. Homer O. Elseroad replaced Dr. C. Taylor Whittier as Superintendent of Schools in Montgomery County. Dr. Whittier had come to the County as superintendent in 1957, from Pinelles County, Florida. A "moderate progressive educator," he updated the educational system, building a classroom for every working day during his seven years here, to its present status as one of the best in the nation. When he left to become Superintendent of Schools in Philadelphia, Dr. Elseroad filled the vacancy, first as acting and then as appointed Superintendent. Rising through the ranks as teacher, principal, and Assistant Superintendent in Baltimore County, Dr. Elseroad came to Montgomery County in 1962 as Deputy Superintendent.

In the November Elections, the return to the School Board of three liberal members, still in a minority after the 1962 conservative sweep, indicated that their liberal philosophy was rousingly backed by the voters. The voting strength, some 90,000 to 30,000, made the community look on the election as a rebuttal of the former conservative success.

Through the area supervisors and principals, the Board continued to provide for an increasing number of students. The 1964 school population of 97,792 expanded to 102,020 this year, thus demanding more of everything. The school system continued to function efficiently, despite the split on the Board in basic philosophy.

Dr. Elseroad, Montgomery County Superintendent of Schools, was the choice of a School Board split on many basic issues. The result of this unified support was efficient operation.

Building Teacher Specialist Eases Loss Of Assistant Principal in Larger School

A two-fold goal dominated Mr. Earl P. Schubert's second year as principal of the school which found two instead of three assistant principals and a teaching specialist. The school had added 129 students over the previous year, to total 2,160 in the fall.

The first goal of the principal was to strengthen and expand the curriculum for non-college students as well as to continue the efforts on behalf of the college-bound. New courses implemented this goal, one in math directed at daily living and one in electricity made possible after installing an electric workshop. Corollary to this aim was strengthening curriculum by reinforcing teaching. Faculty willingness to work late provided the ingredient that clinched the success of the continuing help-study program.

The second part of Mr. Schubert's goal was over-all campus improvement. Scheduled for completion this June was a new sports stadium to seat 3,000, the major part in the program. The creation of this facility, which will be the scene of graduations for many years to come, is a part of the total landscaping effort. Funds for the $10,000 project were traceable to PTA members' dues, part of which went to their Campus Improvement Committee, and to Spartan activities, among them the faculty profits of $400 from The King and I.

Checking on a bulletin with Mrs. Leonard, Miss Martin assesses the clarity of it. Besides being the Dean of Women who metes out punishment when girls need discipline, Miss Martin directs the school office, shares in faculty administration, and carries the administrative responsibility for coordinating the Guidance Department work.

Senior Class President Jim Kruse explains another of his imaginative ideas to Mr. Patton. The Senior Class grew rich and happy under Jim's capable leadership.

To aid the principal in his work of administering the school were the two assistant principals, Mr. Ray Patton and Miss Kathryn Martin, and a teacher specialist, Mr. Lewis Francis, whose administrative duties took two-thirds of each school day. When Mr. William L. Bennett retired in 1964 as assistant principal, he was not replaced; Mr. Francis became responsible for attendance, assemblies, pupil transportation, use of the building, keys, and lockers. Mr. Patton and Miss Martin continued their duties as Dean of Men and Dean of Women.

Mr. Earl P. Schubert: Principal; Superintendent's Ad Hoc Committee on Public Relations; Speaker's Bureau of County School Board; Superintendent's Committee on Community Analysis
Mr. Ray C. Patton: Assistant Principal; Dean of Men
Miss M. Kathryn Martin: Assistant Principal; Dean of Women

Mr. Lewis Francis: Teacher specialist and mathematics teacher. Mr. Francis was a faculty member here when the school opened in 1956. After two years he went to the Central Office to be the Acting Director of Purchasing. Following teaching math at Western and at West Rockville Junior High Schools, he returned to WJ in 1963.

Mr. Schubert has shown himself dedicated to school spirit. He has been devoted to putting an image before the public which will rebound to the school's credit. Over the public address system he sometimes exhorts students to behavior which will underscore good sportsmanship and gentlemanly behavior. Mr. Schubert made it possible for students with valid curricular and extra-curricular activities to drive to school and to use the parking facilities.

Counselors Offer Professional Comfort Reinforced with Secretarial Soothing

Mrs. Mary June Burd: College transcripts; schedules college conferences; general secretarial work to counselors; secretary to Miss Dempsey

Mrs. Doris S. Burke: Supervision of student office workers and switchboard; teacher bi-weekly payroll; substitute teacher payroll; Supporting Services payroll; Federal Aid reports; PTA newsletter; teachers' X-rays; bells—assembly schedule; assist with counter; general office files; attendance duties

Mrs. Miriam Leonard: Secretary to Miss Martin; secretary to Attendance Officer; secretary to play productions; receptionist; attendance bulletin; parent-teacher appointments; homework assignments; IBM mark-sense attendance report; lost and found (valuables); general office supplies; weekly bulletin; student roster and card index; menu; assist with switchboard; general office files

Mrs. Charlotte Miller: Personal secretary to Mr. Schubert; organization of daily routine and physical arrangement of main office; general office files; purchase orders and requisitions; incoming and outgoing mail; administrative payroll; assist with switchboard; assist with counter

Mrs. Winifred Reid: Registrar for school

Mrs. Esther Rothenbuhler: Secretary to Mr. Patton; school financial secretary; student insurance funds; student picture funds; use of building reports; vandalism reports; daily bulletin; equipment safe; field trip tickets

Mrs. Burke is one of the school secretaries whose efficiency keeps the school humming smoothly. She discusses with Mr. Francis a date on the school calendar. It is one of Mr. Francis' chores to schedule student and faculty events.

Miss Auth has a ready smile for the students she counsels. With her colleagues in guidance, one of her chief responsibilities is taking care of the individual's problems. The counselors divide the classes and the homerooms within a class so that the load is equitable. To help them, the Lynnbrook Pupil Personnel Services Area, one of five, assigns here Mr. Joseph Sagnari who consults with counselors; he is the liaison between home and school, recommending specific program changes to help a student. Mrs. Louisa Bilon, school psychologist, does the psychological testing when the Guidance Department needs help to analyze a problem.

Aiding the administration in running the school, the secretarial staff performed a multitude of services, both prescribed and voluntary. Their more mundane tasks encompassed issuing payrolls and managing bell schedules, general office files, and attendance bulletins. Their voluntary work concerned students. Because most of these women are in private life housewives with children, they understood s t u d e n t tribulations. Whenever any pupil needed assistance, even a ride home, he was able to turn to one of these humanitarian spirits who greeted him with open heart.

Academic, vocational, social, and emotional counseling was the expansive area where the Guidance Department aided the confused student. In doing this, though, it encountered two major problems: handling the schedule change requests, which inundate the office each fall and work against class stability, and communicating with the student body. With a growing number of handbooks, bulletins, and bulletin boards, the staff attempted to overcome the second problem. Armed with a tape recording of answers to common questions, Miss Helen Dempsey, Director of Guidance, also visited s e n i o r English classes. Since at least 575 senior Spartans will be entering college this fall, a major task was assisting them in m a k i n g appropriate choices.

Mr. Hinga counsels students beset with college worries, teacher complexes, and school phobias.

Gustatory Staff Tempts Student Salivation As Librarians, Janitors Restore, Rectify

Miss Teresa J. Doherty: Library Coordinator; co-sponsor Library Club

Mrs. Ruth Culbertson: Library Aide; assumes responsibility for the AV program; orders all AV materials; assists with the preparation of AV transparencies; administers a mending program for library books and textbooks needing emergency repair

Mrs. Dolores Gilmore: Librarian; co-sponsor Library Club

Mrs. Helen McPherson: Library Aide; responsible for secretarial functions of the library; incoming and outgoing mail; financial secretary; library purchase orders and supply requisitions; supervises student assistants; responsible for textbook inventory for the entire school

Mrs. Frances Rubin: Library Aide; responsible for circulation desk routine and coverage; distributes notices for overdue books and fines; assists Mrs. Gilmore by doing secretarial work; does bibliographic work for units of instruction

Mrs. Dimmie A. Wilks: Nurse; Medical Careers Club

The Crimea was no worse for Florence Nightingale than the wilderness here is for Mrs. Dimmie Wilks. Well, maybe a little worse . . . because with facilities far superior to those of her forerunner, Mrs. Wilks could treat daily emergencies. "Pain, fatigue, pain . . ." were common complaints, spiced with sudden pre-test aches. With the help of assistants assigned to the health room each period during the day, though, the Spartan nurse was able to cope with all ailments efficiently. One of the main efforts of the County Health Department was to provide detection of hearing loss and eye defects through the tests given to all sophomores by Mrs. Wilks during school hours each fall and spring.

brary was able to convert classroom 119 into an Instructional Materials Center; this finally made literary and visual materials available to all students and teachers. Two special rooms added to those for student use: a listening-viewing room and a special typing room. A teacher preparation room and a conference room the faculty found especially useful.

Mornings found cafeteria workers industriously preparing for noon's onslaught of hungry students, who bought more complete lunches than students of any other school in the County. Though the workers daily fried, frizzled, and sizzled over 1,100 lunches, there was still time for baking. Fresh bread, cookies, cakes, 45 dozen doughnuts, and 70 pies fell to omnivorous consumers.

Stray papers, dead leaves, and general grime were the enemy the custodial staff battled. Limited by rules to working only 40 hours per week, the 17 custodians put in volunteer time, recompensed by time off, to do a complete job, working night and day, weekends included, to keep the building covered.

Custodial Staff: front row: D. Smith, W. Witt; second: H. Coffman, B. Thompson (Died February 5, 1965), A. Shifflett; third: M. Chapman, J. D. Mowell, S. Anderson, M. Hackney. Working a standard shift until 3:30, the custodians clean under their director, Mr. Cecil Cadwallader, here for four years. Further duties entered the crew's domain this year when school policy ruled that no students were to mount ladders during decorating sessions for dances or school productions. Not a few times did these already harried workers acquiesce to please to ascend, crepe paper and masking tape in hand.

Curriculum Inculcates

"Whan that Aprille with his shoures soote the droughte of March hath perced to the roote," the beset English students had written, corrected and written again about 14 of the 18 compositions which form the backbone of the structured writing program. Tenth graders had flown, plowed, or dragged through A Tale of Two Cities, Julius Caesar, and such stand-bys while eleventh grade students read American literature. Senior concentration on Churchill, among others, led to a school-wide hegira. Organized with social studies classes, Miss Margaret Kauffman, English Department chairman, arranged for 900 students to see "The Finest Hours," the movie relating Churchill's life. Two eleventh grade English and chemistry classes experimented with scheduling this year. One day each week the English class ran through their own and the science period allowing two hours for English while the other class had two hours of chemistry. This procedure was reversed on another day, thus providing each class with an extended period for composition and discussions or for a longer lab period.

Miss Fitzgerald summers in Bread Loaf, winters linguistically at George Washington University when not teaching seniors.

Mrs. Washer joined Miss Ashby and Miss Butts in the English Department although she continued to teach Latin 1 and 2.

Sponsor Permits No Passivity in Weekly; Speaker Pants To Uncover Explanation

With a publication every seven days instead of 30, the journalism class found itself covering weekly beats. Because the newspaper's staff numbered only six, every student in journalism covered a beat and brought in ads. The goal was to equal the performance of last year's Pitch when the paper achieved top ratings, Medalist and All-American, from both Columbia Scholastic Press Association and the National Scholastic Press Association. In addition to their Pitch responsibilities, the class learned something of the history of journalism, semantics, and the technical skills they needed for newswriting, layout, copyfitting, proofreading, and picture cropping. Side trips to a major newspaper plant and to print shops and guest lecturers supplemented classwork.

Techniques occupied drama students whose proficiency increased when learning was jogged by audio-visual aids. New textbooks containing the history of drama and excerpts from a wide selection of plays demonstrated aspects of the theater that further expanded the course. Students also became acquainted with facets of theater production. Some tried their hand at creative playwriting; some went to Catholic University for a special course in the history of motion pictures; some participated in seminars. These future actors and producers will be able to use far into the future the reading lists they developed this year.

Have you ever suffered through a talk that turned out to be a complete dud? That can never happen to people who listen to public speakers trained here. The public speaking classes developed poise, organization, and expression which will spare their future audiences so flat a fate. The class activities varied from demonstrations to interpretation of poetry. A study of propaganda, utilizing tapes of Radio Moscow and the Voice of America supplemented regular curriculum.

"We made it!" cry journalism students Andy Lippman, Mary McNamara, and Pitch typist, Ann Kellerman, bundling papers for distribution after the printer delivered them late.

Mrs. Marion McVitty, Mr. Etcheverry's mother and an accredited United Nations observer for the World Association of World Federalists, speaks to the Debate Club on disarmament and peace-keeping devices in the world.

"Do NOT use the passive! If you don't know the difference between the passive and a tense, you shouldn't be on the copy staff in the first place!" was said by Mrs. Wittman at the Yearbook Clinic sponsored by the American Yearbook Company at American University. Mrs. Wittman's speech to junior and senior high school yearbook staff members, discussing the ingredients of informative, colorful copy, was a natural for this WJ publications sponsor.

Performing a teasing strip while doing a demonstration speech for Mrs. Hall's public speaking class, Gordon Atcheson explains the pockets of pressing problems in ironing trousers. From these demonstration speeches the oratory classes learn subjects like pattern cutting, drink-mixing, and sock sewing. Mrs. Hall's pupils, like those of the other speech teachers, use the basic forms and techniques necessary for verbal communication.

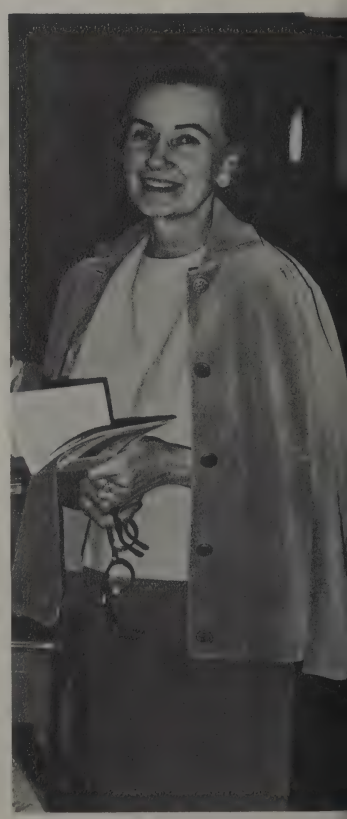
This year Dr. Fagg turned Latin teacher again. Sophomore Judy Plotka came to WJ just in time to profit by this.

Teaching both French and Spanish here for the first time this year, Mrs. Watson, who came here in 1963, takes time out from endless dialogues, dictations, and quizzes to explain to her Spanish students how their Mexican counterparts break Christmas Pinatas. Holiday festivities on Columbus Day and Mexican Independence Day were mere preludes for Mrs. Watson's Spanish 2 classes, who learned to sing "Cascavelles" and "Nocha De Paz" for this grand fête. Though also learning Noel savoir-faire, her French classes were more interested in comparing and contrasting Franco and American educational systems.

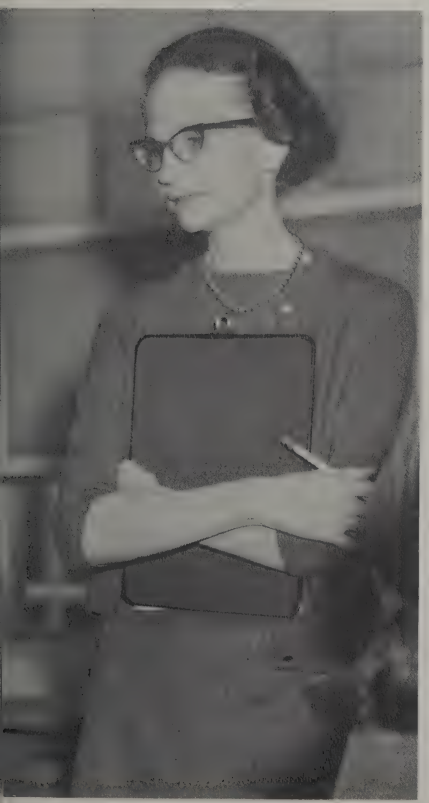
Introducing her French and Spanish pupils to the peoples behind the languages comes naturally to Mrs. Watson. After studying at the Universities of Upsala, Sorbonne, and Oxford and residing for one year in Mexico and seven in Venezuela, she has gained a truly international outlook.

Working in a similar vein, Miss Pettigrew mimeographs numerous sheets for her Spanish students, who also enjoy Spanish culture through records and talks.



Europe lies only eight hours across the ocean; tomorrow it will be closer. As the geographical gap closes, the language distance becomes more clearly apparent. To brook this barrier, demands for communication increase proportionately to a world decreased size. An expanded language program is the answer to this demand, and WJ's language department grew accordingly. The addition of two more French 4 classes this year necessitated planning on French 5 in 1965-1966 for the first time. Foreign trained or rapid learning Spanish students reaped the benefits of a combination class of levels 3 and 4. Latin 1, offered for the first time in years, provided the opportunity for students to take Latin as a second foreign language. The future will see a language section in the school library. Thus the department has expanded and deepened. Fourteen hundred students took advantage of the facilities available to them. These students will take their places as active citizens in a shrinking world.

Mrs. Craig, head of the Foreign Languages, relates the influence of the seventeenth century triumvirate of Corneille, Moliere, and Racine to French 4 students.



Demonstrating dictatorial style, Mrs. Schlagel reads a dictee from one of an endless succession of French dialogues, the near death of many students.

Historical Approaches Dependent on View From Chronology, Economics, Geography

After teaching for 20 years, Mr. Von Bretzel still retains the acute sense of history which began when his family fled from the Russion Revolution.

The diversity of points of view toward history enabled social studies courses to cover the same events with changing emphasis. To the United States History classes, the second World War represented a period of unsatisfactory isolationism rudely interrupted by Pearl Harbor. For Pan-American and Far Eastern History classes it was the time in which Japan rose to the position of possible world domination. World History took an aerial view of international developments between World Wars. Meanwhile Economics students appraised the inflationary effects of a war on a country's fiscal condition. For European History students the war was the inevitable result of ingrained animosities which they watched develop through the centuries. The course, newly added this year, explored the social, political, and economic developments of Europe, contrasting the divergent cultures in that geographical entity. The course concentrated on European events from the French Revolution through the Atomic Revolution.

"Reflect," says Mrs. Tuwiner, a new US and World History teacher. With the opinion that the study of history should transcend mere facts and names to reach the reasons and ideas behind them, she requires students to do individual outside research.

In typical pose, Mr. Stout considers the audio-visual management, now a part of the library's Instructional Materials Center.

Mr. Walsh, "neat" teacher of US History and Problems of the 20th Century, lectures his classes on Viet Nam and the Congo.

Chem Study Course Omits Memorization, Uses Charts, Slide Rules, Crib Sheets

In an Advanced Biology class, Senior Barry Goodridge and teacher Mr. Harrison observe the splitting of an amoeba during mitosis, enlarged 1,000 times.

Mrs. MacNamee perfectly understands meiosis and mitosis; she also understands that unless she prepares a thorough lecture that can give these and other important cell principles to her students, certain dim cells will not be receptive.

"Biology is no longer just a nature study. Chemistry is no longer a cook book," according to Mr. Harrison, the head of the Science Department. Students now approach these sciences from the point of view of explaining nature in the language of energy and atom-molecule reshufflings. Biology has switched to the BSCS. (Biological Science Curriculum Study Committee method.) This program has a molecular emphasis and brings chemistry and physics into the study of biology.

In chemistry, Walter Johnson explored two new programs. One section tried the Chemical Bond Approach Project. In this course, data and ideas were presented not merely as items for memorization. Instead, imaginative thinking had to interpret the data produced through experiments. The Chemical Education Material Study (Chem-study) expanded from the two sections last year to include 13 this year. The emphasis in this course was on an experimental approach to chemistry with laboratory work playing a major role. From their results in a series of over 35 lab experiments, students were able to discover chemical laws for themselves before learning them from books.

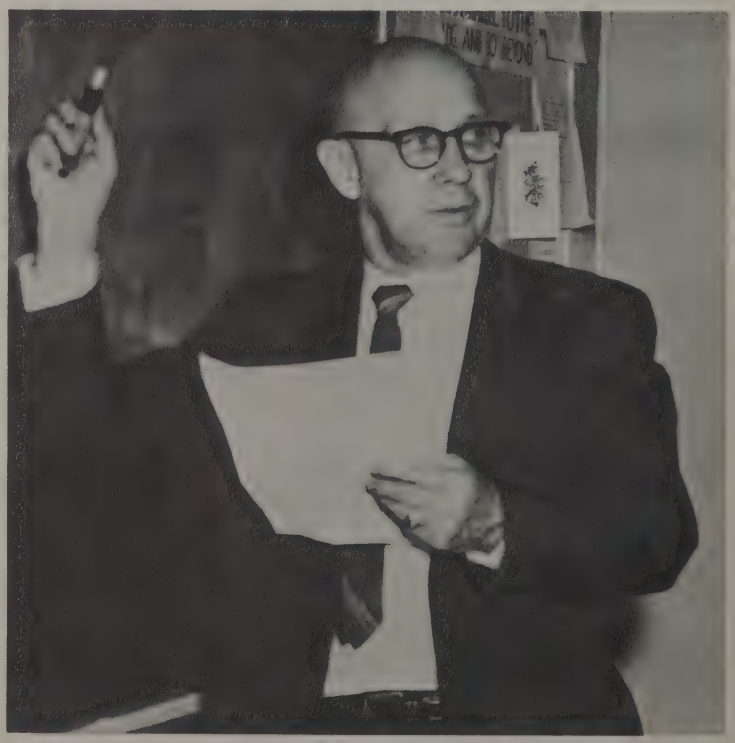
Peering into the mysteries of geometric postulates, theorems, and corollaries, Sophomores Dennis Glick and Dave Schwering attempt to follow Dr. Nicholas' path into the light. After substituting here last year, Dr. Nicholas is now teaching full-time.

Expansion of classrooms and more teaching staff accented the Math Department this year. The newly added wing of WJ accommodated four new classrooms and an additional storage room. New equipment, provided for by the National Education Act, ranged from blackboard compasses to overhead projectors. Even with the new facilities, however, several staff members had to be "traveling" teachers with no assigned room.

Problems of progressive difficulty challenged enrollees in Business Math, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and analysis. From elementary school on, students had been regrooving their brains to answer the increasingly tough questions. In Business Math a question might read, "Mr. Brown invested $375 for six months and received $12.25. What was the rate of interest?" In analysis, a relatively new approach based on logic and reasoning, the problem might read, "No teacher has a sense of humor. Some clever people do not have a sense of humor. Therefore, some teachers are clever." The student who has survived Montgomery County's new math program can analyze anything.



In true vaudevillian style, Mr. Kenneth Tilton relates Trigonometry and Advanced Algebra to numerous other subjects, including physics, bridge-building and Latin.

Potters, Sculptors Desert Ivory Towers; Homemakers Seek To Regain Heights

No longer is an artist in an ivory tower. He approaches creativity from an earthy base. Clay, molded on the spinning potter's wheel, took shape under the delicate pressure of a student's hand in ceramics class. Here the neophyte formed three dimensional work through carved wood, sculptured clay, and stone arrangements. Students exemplified a contrast of style: sharp, piercing colors or smooth flowing ones, through pencil, chalk, oil, and water color in Art 1, 2, and 3. For those who wished to attempt modernization, photo engraving, silk screening, and electric art welding provided new media for expression. An artist's creativity found practical application in the Commercial Art course, where learning graphic design led to the production of publicity posters, stage settings, and advertising layouts.

Students delved into the nature of musical composition to apply meaning to the basic harmonies of Rimski-Korsakov, Tchaikovsky, Haydn Schubert, Mozart, and many other great composers. Theory class introduced the concepts and fundamentals behind famous works and urged students to create pieces of their own. The instrumental and choral groups applied their knowledge to actual production of the masters' works.

Recognition of the foundation which Home Arts supplies is implicit in the full credit the course will offer next year. Girls in the home arts labs were climbing back towards the heights of the ivory tower. They began with a practical approach made easier with the addition of five new electric stoves, six new sewing machines, and a new refrigerator. The curriculum of the department changed to provide a modern approach to management of time, energy, and materials in a modern, practical household. After the basic steps, creativity began. Each individual added her touches to basic food dishes and to simple patterns to achieve self-expression.

Barbara Krause never falls apart at the seams because she makes certain that her precise stitching follows the instruction given in sewing units of Home Arts. The girls' sewing in Advanced Clothing leads to the presentation of a spring show.

Wondering how Bonnard painted when he was 17, Karen McLaughlin dabs finishing touches on her oil painting. This is only one type of independent project, offered in Art 3, which gives students a chance to experiment following individual talent.

Mrs. Waddell, head of the Home Arts Department, teaches professional tailoring in Advanced Clothing. With the shift in curricular emphasis on management of time, energy, and materials, her department has a new outlook. Management is now an independent unit, concentrating on present chores, school work, and social life.

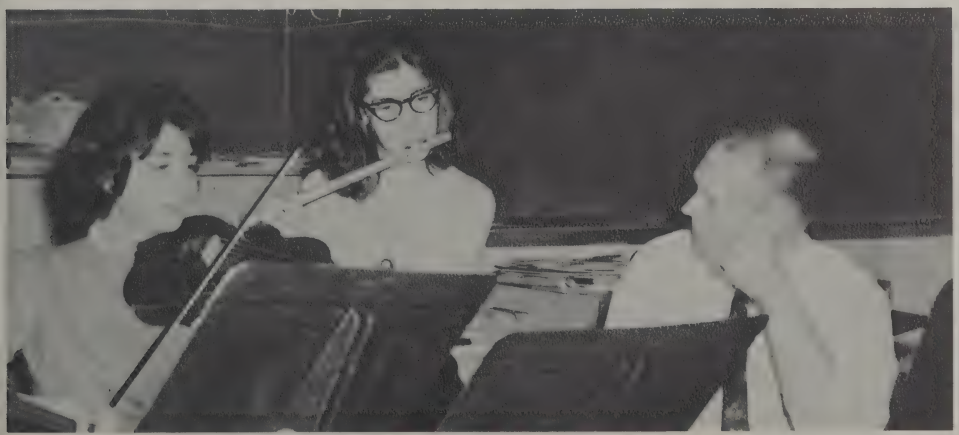
Mrs. Wanda Waddell: Advanced Clothing; Home Arts 3; Home Arts Department head; Future Homemakers of America



Singing praises to Beethovan on his birthday, Lillian Sober and Beth Durham practice original compositions created in Mr. Muir's music theory class. Each student learns the concepts behind composition which they then apply to writing their own pieces.

Jet Age Prompts New Electronics Course; Gym Classes Enjoy Expanded Facilities

New sounds in the Industrial Arts Department consisted of the high-pitched whir of electric motors and the blips of oscilloscopes. These came from the new electricity course taught by Mr. Martin P. Farabaugh in 107. Added to the curriculum for the first time this year, it supplied students, through lectures, the theories and, through shop work, the practical applications of electrical current. Students built transmitters, electric motors, and converters for both AC and DC current. Second semester was devoted to building radios and amplifying and receiving units.

The electricity shop itself rapidly gained the appearance of a full scale laboratory as new transmitters, oscilloscopes, and tools continued to flow in. New equipment designed to test projects supplying power were also part of this inundation. The course text was Electricity and Electronics, published in 1964.

With the addition of the new gym, auxiliary gym, and team room, the Girls Physical Education Department revised its entire curriculum. The added space permitted greater emphasis on individual rather than on team sports. Now able to fence, the girls polished up thrusts and parries. Dancing, modern and folk, vied with the traditional sports. A new trampoline, a set of uneven bars, and several tumbling mats filled the new space. New hockey sticks lent sharpened practice.

A remodeled locker room for the boys allowed ample dressing space in the spacious new cages. Meanwhile with the new girls gym, the boys had the main gym to themselves, doubling their playing area.

Students in commercial courses found that immediate use made subjects a practical path to jobs and gainful employment. Personal typing and stenography for college use continued to win approval the registration showed. Business Math, added to the curriculum, presented commercial students with opportunity to learn mathematics useful in daily life.

Amid the clutter of transformers in the new Electricity course, Russell Brown asks Mr. Farabaugh to explain the complicated principles of Ohm's Law.

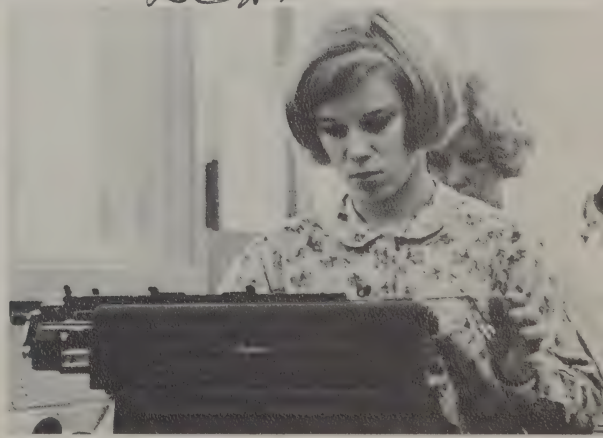
Displaying the art of passing a basketball to set up a shot, Mr. Kline fires the ball to one of his eager students who scored on a layup. Meanwhile Noel Gale pecks out "The quick brown fox . . . " in her personal typing class, a course for student convenience.



9 Years of a Winning Streak:

Unfolding Perspective

During Walter Johnson's nine years of existence, almost 5,000 students have received their high school education. Each one of these thousands faced individual problems. In attempting to solve these, whether they concerned mathematics, relationship with a teacher, or winning a debate, the student formed and reformed patterns of thought and conduct. Such adaptation built and shaped character. The daily experiences of each student within his classes were largely responsible for this. As he studied other civilizations and became acquainted with foreign modes of thought, his perception deepened. The wealth of knowledge he acquired lent him a sense of his individual role in relation to the rest of the world. Still true is this developing character and unfolding perspective. Each student here moves now confidently toward his individual future with a growing appreciation of what it offers him.

Frolicking, Enaged in

The Senior Class Council, led by President Jim Kruse, sponsored by Mr. William E. Schroeder, made the Senior Lounge its chief project this year. With Barbara Tigert co-chairman of the Cafeteria Policy Committee, seniors arranged for responsible use of their beloved "home away from home."

The Council sparked a parade at the Homecoming game. Seventeen floats competed in the parade for the Principal's Trophy presented at halftime to the Drama Club. Carol Dodd, Homecoming queen, presided over the "Harvest Moon" dance. Among its profitable ventures were selling candy at football games and issuing 200 Senior Budget Cards at $5 a card which gave the bearer special privileges.

Seniors put on "Teahouse of the August Moon," making money, another first.

The Class of 1965, enjoying a hoot jam in January, the prom on May 28 at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, arrived full steam ahead at Senior Week in June. Senior Night June 4 and the Senior Boat Trip June 5 were the preludes to graduation June 17, the finale.

Vice-president Bill Edwards, President Jim Kruse, Treasurer Bill Head, and Secretary Barbara Tigert formed a quartet of leadership such as the Senior Class had never had. Jim proved an efficient president; the seniors fared well.

Lounging, Worrying Engross Seniors Propelling Selves to Frenetic Finish

Front: C. Visser, B. Wilfand, J. Candela, P. Behrens, K. Jones; second: B. Malmgren, K. Moeller, N. Braymer, C. Scott, A. Hagerman, J. Balderson, C. Ness; third: D. Norton, B. Pohlman, J. Rhudy, B. Tigert, B. Head, J. Croddy; fourth: F. Leatherman, R. Deutsch, J. Kruse, J. Elkin, D. Stradinger, B. Edwards, M. Garrett immersed themselves in a trading stamp drive, until the whole Senior Class was seeing everything in green and yellow. These stamps purchased a new chair and couch for the lounge. Since this lounge was to pass on to succeeding classes, seniors invited juniors and sophomores to contribute to their efforts. Revolutionized was the senior record, patterned after a news commentary punctuated by sound effects. Reinstating the Variety Show, a tradition in past years, the Council again invited all classes to participate in the program. Singing groups, skits, pantomimes, and all other acts were chosen by try-outs in January for the February 6 performance.

Either devotion or dementia accounted for an all-night work session where 15 Drama Club members feverishly cut, folded, and pasted 10,000 paper flowers on their homecoming float. Chanting old English ditties all the way, Mary Gordon, Tom Statton, Dave Harper, and Douie O'Meara claimed the final honor of leading Romeo, Juliet, and 25 rolls of tissue paper to victory in the parade.

Steve Voshell steps back to admire his work on the German Club's float prior to the Homecoming Parade. Held together with tissue paper, paper maché, rags, and chicken wire, floats, represented days and nights of hard work by club members. At halftime in the Northwood game the floats paraded down Democracy Boulevard, around the track, and then lined up to await the awarding of the Principal's Trophy for the best float. Mr. Schubert presented the trophy to the Drama Club as strips of tissue paper sailed in the breeze. FBLA had a convertible with paper flowers; Concert Chorus created their emblem.

Busily selling hot dogs, Pepsis, and doughnuts, Eleanor Shook serves the hungry halftime crowds surrounding the Snack Shack. Latest of the Student Council's money making ventures, the wooden shack is annually loaned to WJ by the Pepsi-Cola Co. during the football season. Its profits, along with those of the old shack on the hill, swell the SCA treasury.

Pat Barclay and Randy Davis have open to them the gamut of English writing. With the twelfth year devoted to English literature following eleventh grade American studies, the seniors experience the depth and variety in authors who, although they speak the same tongue, have been at the use of it far longer than native authors. English literature becomes the vehicle for insight into early cultural patterns not only of the United States but also of the European countries whose proximity to England made those cultures important among the British long before America began. From Boewulf through Chaucer through Shakespeare through Milton through Pope and on down to William Golding whose Lord of the Flies is in almost everyone's discussions, seniors have the world of books before them. Some seniors were able to take advantage of Advanced Placement work. This was extra-curricular, a labor of love on the part of the English Department Chairman.

Developing Middlemen

Normally lost between the splendid seniors and the sophomoric beginners, the Junior Class notched itself into the fabric of school activities with lively officers and adviser, Mr. Walter Madden, who joined the faculty this year.

First, they were the new sponsors of the old welcome-back dance on Sept. 26, the traditional S.S. Walter Johnson. On Back-to-School Night, they delighted parents with a bake sale which yielded $40 in profits, boosting the Junior Class treasury to almost $200. Perhaps the most praiseworthy and thoughtful undertaking was the class's impressive program Sunday, Nov. 8, at Rockville Cemetery, where the eleventh graders noted the seventy-seventh anniversary of Walter Johnson's birth by placing a bouquet of flowers at his gravesite. Treasurer Don Levin commented, "We decided to try something worthwhile and different to celebrate the occasion."

Never afraid to attempt something new, the seniors-to-be took the initiative in displaying creativity in all they did. The Junior-Senior prom brought their ingenuity to a climax.

Les Guthman, president; Stuart Sheldon, vice-president; Don Levin, treasurer; and Sue Hunley, secretary, took on the responsibility of running the Junior Class. In the activities they pursued, the officers showed originality, earnestness, and charm.

Grob, B. Nelson; fourth: D. Levin, R. Simon, S. Hunley, C. Anderson, N. Crosswhite, B. Leeder, S. Sheldon, elected by their homeroom peers, served as class leaders. With a treasury fattened by previous successes, the Junior Class launched into another money-making project at the start of the basketball season. They compiled and sold basketball programs containing team rosters. Making their profits from ads purchased by local merchants, the class could afford to sell the programs for five cents.

Class Council members created the spark which lit enthusiasm through their class. This enthusiasm led to defeating the seniors and capturing the Jolly Green Giant in the canned food drive.

Ready now for final interment, Julius Caesar, alias Wayne Weeks, lies in state, as his murderers, Wayne Jarman, Elizabeth Wilson, Eileen Lourie, and Jimmy Adair, confer about their success in the slaying of Rome's all-powerful emperor. This dramatic scene found its traditional way into the curriculum of Mrs. Carolyn Muehlhouse's fifth period English 2 class. The study of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar and its activities led the way to Junior year literature.

A three-man assembly line, Dorothy Montgomery, Rachel Saphir, and Jimmy Adair, put oriental silk to good use in their agglutinative silk screening of posters to advertise the faculty's October production of Rogers and Hammerstein's The King and I. The toil and insistence of diligent Art 2 students proved effective, resulting in well-filled houses for both nights of the production.

Katherine Nelson turns over to the school a flag that once flew over the United States Capitol. She won this and a $50 bond in an essay contest on What the Star Spangled Banner Means to Me. Kathy's gift came from the Ensign C. Markland Kelly, Jr., Memorial Post No. 174, the Commander of which, Col. James I. Considine, acting for the Metropolitan Civil Association of Baltimore, made the presentation. The Veterans' Day ceremony, arranged by Principal Earl P. Schubert on the Wednesday of American Education Week, Nov. 9-13, saw parents visiting the school.

Unity and integrity were Brigadier-General Kenneth C. Dempster's theme for his Veterans' Day speech. Introducing and concluding the ceremonies, Concert Chorus and Concert Band, under the direction of Miss Virginia Harder and Mr. Gilbert Muir, paid a salute to the veterans.

Karl Bergenstal, inset, was president of the Sophomore Class. Chris Muzyk served as secretary; Rick Chasen, treasurer. Judi Hall, who was vice-president, won her office only after a run-off election following a tie vote with her colleague, Alice Horton.

No one expected anything from the new sophomores—unless it was subservience. They basked in the attention they received; the Student Council held orientation for them, handed them booklets which listed school rules and a floor plan. The sophomores responded with pleasure—until the full impact of senior over junior high school hit them. Once adjusted to a new young adulthood, they settled in like veterans to studying.

The new faces and new ideas converged when alumni from both Kensington and North Bethesda Junior High Schools put away their former rivalries to form the Sophomore Class. Their class elections, while still showing the effects of junior high separateness, ended in a roster made up of both schools. With this leadership came a welding of interests to promote the body politic, election of Class Council representatives.

Their Pot Luck supper and dance led off their year. Crowning a King and Queen of Gluttony was the highlight of the novel evening.

Mrs. Osa Coffey was sponsor for the 749 students in the incoming class.

Sinecure As Baby of School Wanes Serious Load of Tough Curriculum

Front: K. Mackin, J. Tang, M. Jukes, J. Sacks, J. Henceroth; second: J. Grubb, T. Brown, H. Simpson, G. Gibson, B. Payden, S. Urban; third: D. Van Alstine, J. Feldman, R. Chasen, A. Moldawer, J. Hall; fourth: K. Daly, C. Muzyk, W. Abbot, P. Brandon, A. Horton, M. Manger were this year's Sophomore Class Council members. Besides reporting weekly to their homerooms, these representatives were responsible for compiling and organizing their classmates' ideas.

The sophomores managed an easy transition from their junior high schools to senior high, owing not only to the orientation that the Student Council arranged, but also to the calibre of the class itself. Almost to a man, they fitted into the school activities, profiting as individuals and benefiting the school. Their courses were the old reliables with composition stepped up, with math at a level beyond Algebra 2 if they had taken it from eighth grade on, and with foreign language begun in the elementary grades.

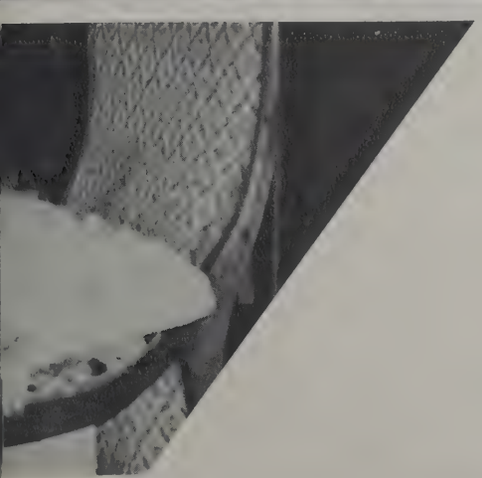
9 Years of a Winning Streak:

Rewarding Participation



As experiences form the bases for maturity, Walter Johnson's winning streak in graduating mature individuals is owing in part to its range of extra-curricular activities. Through participation in social affairs, clubs, and competitive sports, each student learns to adapt to many situations. He gains insight into the behavior of others and finds the most effective way of taking part in a group. He develops facility in communicating his ideas. Most important, he strengthens his awareness of his personality and learns control.

Growth does not spring solely from a series of continual triumphs, however. Defeats play their part, as well; it is failure in an endeavor which causes a student to pause and wonder. Analyzing the reasons for failure, he learns to correct the fault: was it choice of goals? means of achievement? inadequate preparation? He gains the insight to grow through his participation, which, win or lose, can be rewarding.

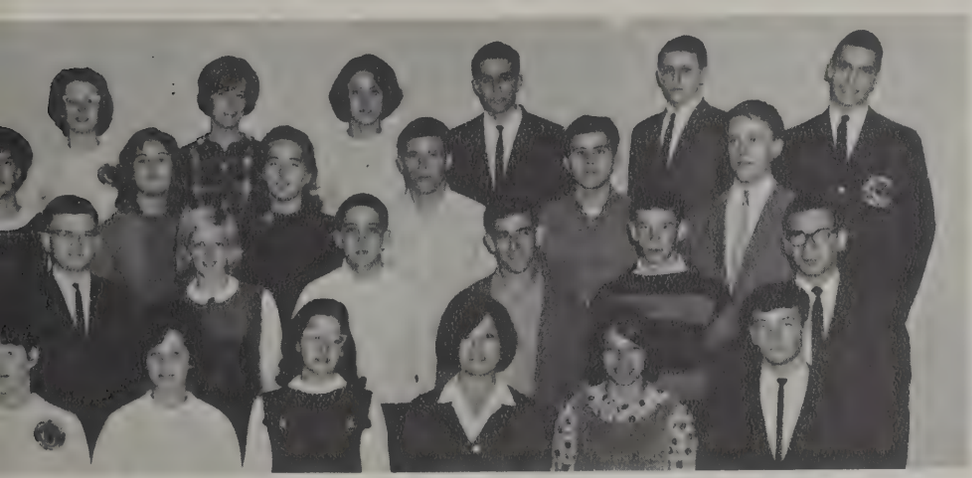
Students Establish Choice in Activities Selection of Meaningful Working Fun



Part of a small but enthusiastic audience, John Cobb, Tom Dorman, and Principal Schubert enjoy AFS Irma Niemi's talk of her first encounter with corn on the cob.

The Student Council Association reflects the diversity of its more than 2,000 members. Students translated thought into action through the Representative Council, while the Coordinating Council synchronized club activities and organized the annual Activity Fair. As important as the parent groups, the ten standing committees of SCA provided students with an opportunity for direct action.

Patterning their system on the highly successful one at New Trier (Illinois) high School which began 35 years ago and now applies to 95 per cent of their classes, the Honor Committee was able to initiate the honor system in 17 classes and worked industriously to widen support for it among the faculty and students.

Broadening to include community as well as cultural activities, COCECA held a book drive to add to the library of Southeast Neighborhood House. They also co-sponsored the Soirée Romantique and continued to make student tickets to some area performances available.

Sparking school spirit, the Athletic Committee planned the Pep Rallies, B-CC week, and the bonfire, in addition to publicizing sports and selling food at the games.

The catch-all committee, Special Services, carried out such indispensable projects as lock and locker maintenance, picture distribution, grounds clean-up day, and SCA workshop.

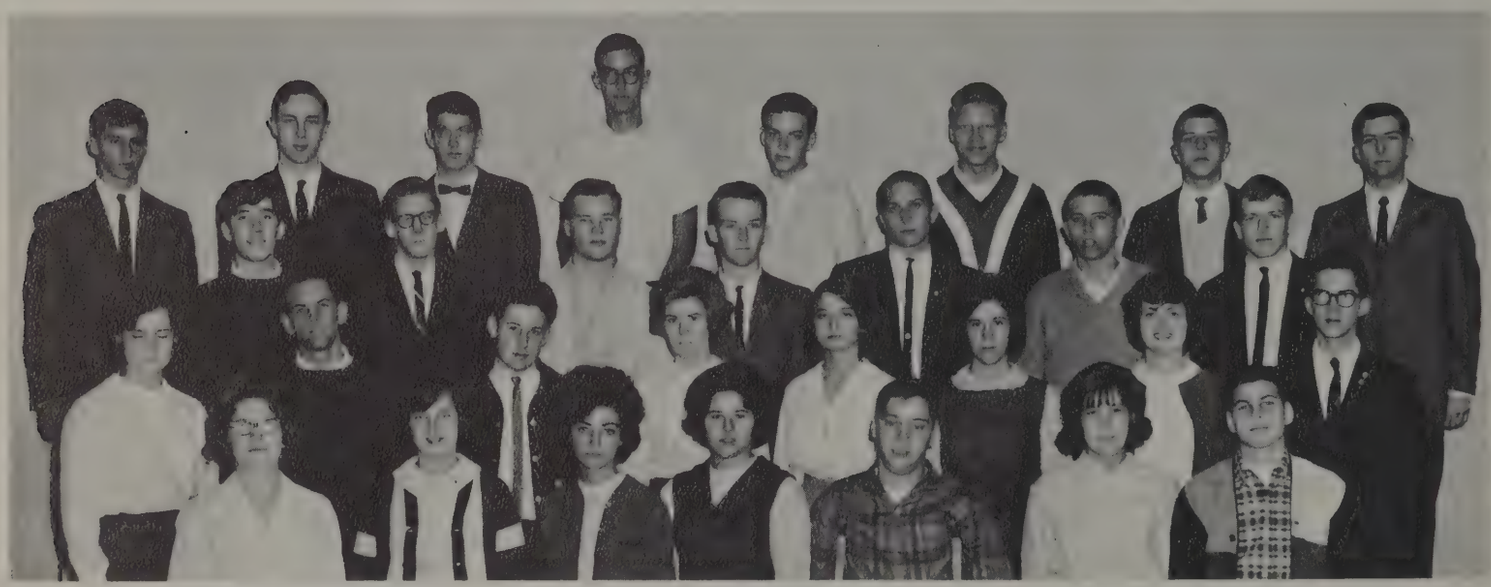
The Welfare Committee, after awarding a rather large and rather jolly green giant to the juniors for bringing in the most cans in the canned food drive, then turned its attention and energy to the Share Drive held in late February.

With imaginative ideas and original execution making up for low cost materials, the Social Committee was able to play magician, transforming the B-CC dance into the "Athlete's Foot" and The Sno-ball into the "Twelve Days of Christmas."

Student Council Association Works School World Through Committees

Honor Committee: front row: Chairman T. Dorman, B. Nelson, M. Tabor; second: R. Simon, J. Brummitt, D. Gilchrist, G. Coates, P. Galvin explicated the proposed honor system.

Skokowski, W. Pearson, C. Tewell, presided over by the vice-president of the Student Council Association, are representatives of every club and activity in the school. The Coordinating Council, the forum and organizational organ of the activities, arranges the annual Activity Fair. They apportion booths and approve ideas and projects. Part of the money they raise goes to support the AFS Exchange Student.



COCECA: front row: J. Myers, S. Thomas, Subchairman L. Pope, C. Echavarren, S. Burtner, L. Wells; second: J. Roudebush, L. Sober, E. Bortman, K. McLaughlin, I. Pinkson; third: M. Crawford, H. Cochran "have been working" on the organization and production of the rallies and games throughout the season. To spark enthusiasm, the Athletic Committee planned "Beat B-CC Week," the Bonfire, and initiated the Booster Button and Decal sale.

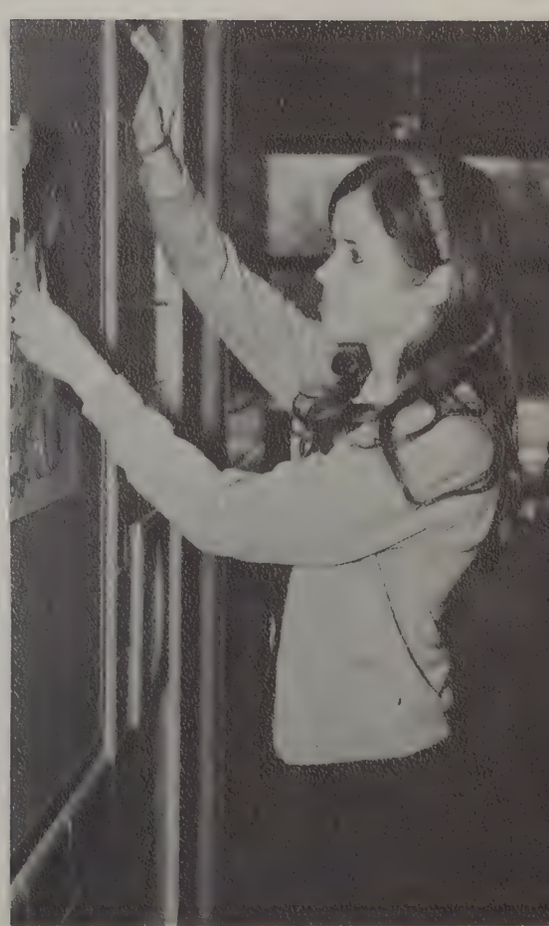
Dick Bigelow, Student Council vice-president, makes a point over an imaginary telephone at a meeting of Coordinating Council representatives in the SCA room. Since the chief function of the council is the management of club activities and their financial affairs, it is largely concerned with the Activity Fair in May. The group provides all of the necessary decorations for the Fair such as tablecloths, tables, crepe paper, balloons, and any other necessary odds and ends that the clubs need. The council meets sporadically whenever they have business to consider.



COCECA Chairman Caroline Crippen publicizes Soirée Romantique. Members of the committee think that it stands for cultural, educational, and community activities although none are sure.

Graciousness Greases Affable Society As It Publicizes Self, In, Out, Abroad

Hospitality Committee: front row: J. Sewell, S. Irving, J. Candela, R. Kweller, K. Akers; second: L. Stringfellow, A. Grant, M. Kidd, J. Leatherwood, M. MacCutcheon, C. Ness, K. Beck; third: B. Nesbitt, E. Shock, L. Smith, P. Dimmers, D. Dibeler, C. Schmick; fourth: C. Simon, L. Ruskin, A. Horton, P. Munn, N. Crosswhite, Chairman D. Norton, J. Dimmers add a personal touch to the school. The Hospitality Committee welcomes newcomers, remembers birthdays, and notes illnesses. It began the year by sponsoring the orientation process for incoming sophomores and new students. It keeps the orientation process up all through the school year by showing new students who enter late around the school. As each teacher's special day approaches, the Hospitality Committee is there to express Happy Birthday greetings no matter how much a teacher wishes to forget.

Out-of-School Publicity: front row: C. Horigan, B. Schwartz, S. Wadeson, S. Runnels, D. Dierker; second: J. Blomquist, S. Burtner, D. McLellan, Co-chairman A. Lippman, J. Leatherwood, K. Jones; third: Chairman Cheryl Cole, C. Dillehay, B. Nesbitt, C. Crandell, D. Dunlop; fourth: J. Schmoll, J. Holland, R. Mason, H. Kessler, R. Bieri, B. Leikind, the Out-of-School Publicity Committee, keep in touch with the community through eye-catching posters, notes in area papers, and local radio stations.

What to do with pizza and watermelon posed serious problems for Finnish Spartan Irma Niemi and four American Field Service cohorts. Their not-so-serious descriptions entertained parents at the Jan. 19 PTA meeting, designed to spur enthusiasm for housing next year's foreign exchange student.

International Exchange Committee: front row: L. Pope, J. Tang, J. Myers, J. McGuire, S. Irving, J. Tang, S. Thomas, A. Sarp, R. Kweller; second: K. Dahlman, S. Wood, G. Smyers, S. Burtner, J. Roudebush, A. Barker, C. Crippen, J. Luoto, I. Niemi; third: R. Bieri, N. Braymer, M. Larson, M. Muller, N. Krichmar, C. Kovacic, R. Sillcox, D. Montgomery; fourth: N. Sarp, S. Graham, H. Lemp, J. Holland, K. Wellman, Chairman P. Mattix, O. Lundwall, B. Edwards, J. Brummitt, International Exchange Committee, continue the two-pronged job serving as the American Field Service's representative here and as a committee for foreign students. In addition to organizing teas and an international week, members run a PTA meeting and find accommodations for summer visitors.

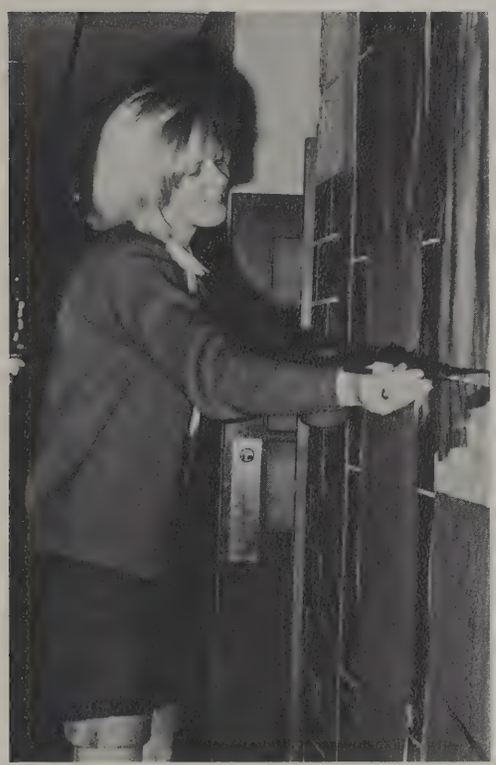
In School Publicity: front row: J. Mobley, W. Pashkoff; second: Chairman J. Tomlin, B. Bucher, K. West, J. Adams, K. deMarne, S. Plante; third: H. Kessler, P. Blundell, C. Anderson, D. Green, J. Tang, N. Kosofsky, E. Bergman; fourth: G. Haas, K. Maginnis, C. Sheirburn, S. Brown, S. DiGiacomo, I. Pinkson, S. Nehmer, G. Fuchsman, S. Brouard, T. Higgins. The In-school Publicity Committee consists of the students in the Commercial Art 1 and 2 classes. Through the class they learn lettering, basic principles of display, layout design and other skills which are applicable to the commercial field. Each student has one bulletin board or showcase which he is in charge of for the year, thus gaining practical experience. Students also work on a calendar for a class project. The committee itself, an extension of the class, silk screens posters for dances, plays and other school functions. This year, banners for athletic events were an innovation.

Special Services Committee: front row: B. Warlick, A. Mehlert, S. Runnels, D. Dierker, C. Trantham, G. Kiesel; second: T. Tate, J. Hadary, Chairman R. Hollander; K. Camp, L. Lawson, C. Cole; third: S. Hutson, C. Simon, C. Green, D. Rubinstein, W. Brown, J. Grob, A. Kasnett; fourth: D. Levin, R. Simon, C. Tewell, S. Hunley, S. Sheldon, E. Gronkiewicz, K. Hansing, R. Wright handle all matters which do not come under the jurisdiction of any other Student Council committee.

Welfare Committee: front row: J. Candela, T. Brown, S. Pearson, M. Robben; second: J. Hargett, E. Shook, J. Leatherwood, L. Stradinger; third: N. Krichmar, L. Sutermeister, Chairman L. Lawson, V. Wolfe, D. Dunlop; fourth: C. Cole, B. Tigert, H. Lemp, C. Dodd, L. Ruskin, J. Balderson. Six feet of green-painted papier maché, the Jolly Green Giant, towered above can-collectors during Welfare Committee's canned food drive. From his lofty vantage point the Kelly-green monster watched with interest as seniors posted signs bearing slogans such as "Seniors: Don't sit on 'em, bring 'em in." He witnessed arguments between members of different classes about who would win. He viewed Spartans bringing in boxes of cans and waiting as Welfare Committee counted and tallied them.

Social Committee: front row: C. Taylor, J. Paine, T. Higgins, M. Downing; second: D. Scott, M. Lewis, B. Kronstadt, S. Costello, B. Nesbitt; third: L. Stradinger, H. Kessler, J. Pineau, K. Moeller, P. Sharkey, J. Remias; fourth: K. Noonan, C. Cole, A. Stover, D. Watson, E. Bach, S. McFarland, J. Handy. "The Twelve Days of Christmas" proved to be an ideal theme for the Snoball. Bigger than life-size paper figures representing the twelve days stood guard around the gym, lending a fairy-tale aura to the dance.

Catch-all Committee Rivals Social Peers In Reducing Frustration Level in Living



Welfare Committee member, Jan Leatherwood, adds the winning stroke for the Juniors.

Grinning devilishly at liberal stacks of money, Robert Hollander and Debbie Adams contemplate Bermuda with the funds from student individual picture payments.

Social Committee: front row: B. Warlick, S. Kelley, J. Sewell, B. Schwartz, B. Wilfand; second: N. Stein, F. Griffith, P. Fredine, P. Paul, S. Simmons, K. Elliott, J. Tang; third: C. Hahn, V. Corso, S. Runnels, J. Blomquist, S. Altfilish, S. Burtner; fourth: A. Grant, J. Neill, D. Dierker, J. Leatherwood, K. Jones, M. Stetson, C. Miller. Under the leadership of imaginative Kris Moeller, the Social Committee accented atmosphere at SCA dances with ingenious decorations of crépe paper, balloons and wire.

Honor Societies Heighten Awareness Of Responsible Use of Brain Power

Honor Society inductee Marjea Brand beams as she is led down the aisle by Dianne Levine. Meanwhile the crowd listens in suspense for other names of new inductees.

In volunteer as well as in scholastic work, there are different degrees of efficacy. Through Honor Clubs the faculty recognized those students who had shown excellence in a specific area.

Perhaps the broadest of the Honor Clubs is the National Honor Society, which chooses members on the basis of over-all scholastic achievement and character.

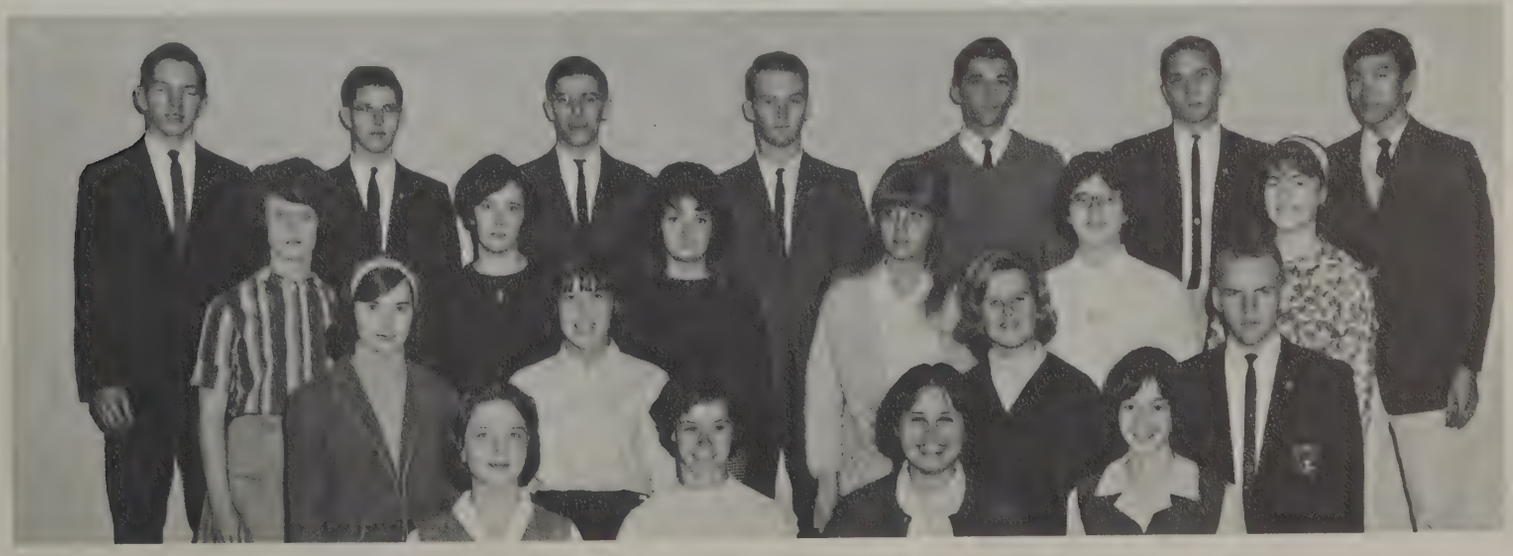
An honorary journalism society, Quill and Scroll, recognized hard working members of the publication staffs, while the Spanish Honor Society selected members from third and fourth year Spanish students. The latter helped extend the language program by tutoring students and by assisting Spanish teachers.

In order to be a member of the National Thespian Society a student must have had an equivalent of 10 points or 100 hours of meritorious theatre work. This society helped sponsor movie nights and produce plays for the One-Act Play Festival.

Honor Society: front row: J. Luoto, B. Malmgren, K. Moeller, B. Durham; second: J. Roudebush, J. Munby, C. Crippen, C. Kovacic, J. Boehm; third: K. Wellman, N. Braymer, M. Brand, J. Elkin, P. Mattix, H. Lemp; fourth: D. Edwards, B. Eicher, President E. Tabor, J. Kruse, J. Brummitt, S. Buchwalter, G. Coates. Since the Honor Society exists primarily for academic recognition rather than for service, it has few group undertakings. Aside from monitoring study halls every morning from eight o'clock on for students who desire a quiet room in which to work, members meet only for speakers for the entire club. Mundane matters such as signing up for study hall proctoring duties and obtaining gold membership pins are left to the individual. A late spring speech by an English professor at Maryland University was the last activity of the society in 1964. Speaking of the aspects of Christianity found in the novels of Joyce and other modern writers, Mr. John Portz analyzed psychology involved, effects on the reading public, and trends in literature. Honor Society Club members carried on the discussion with comments and questions.

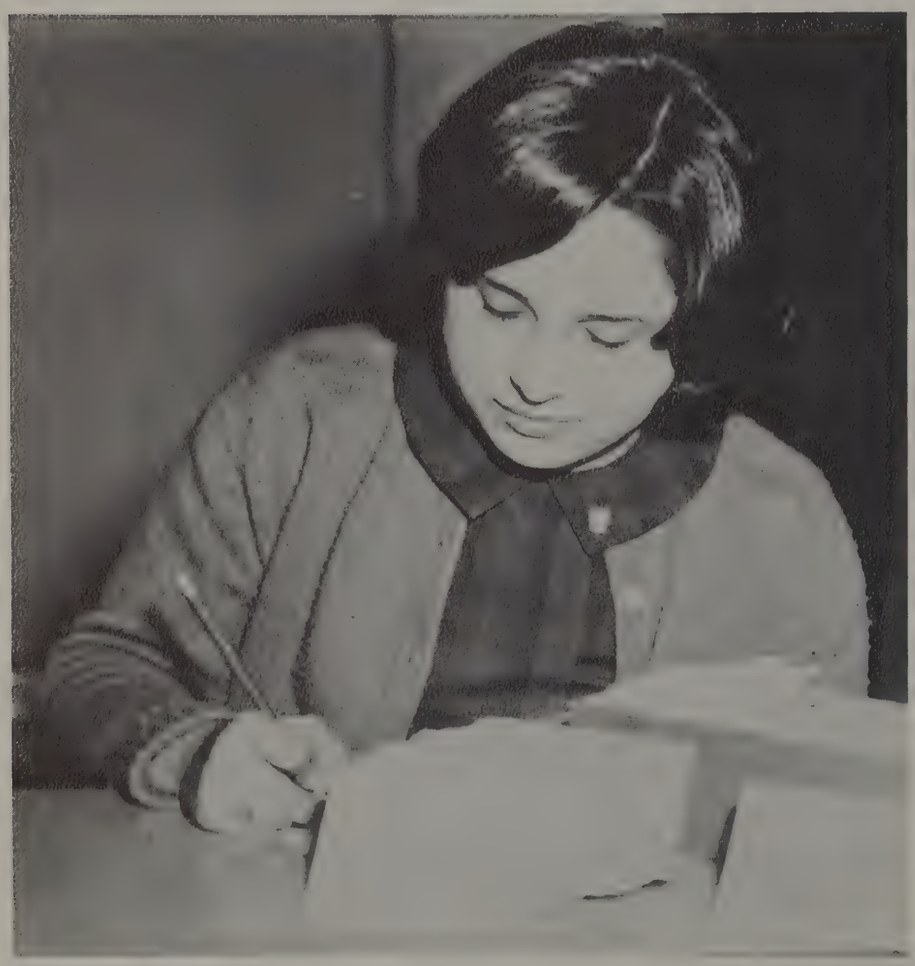
Honor Society: upper picture: C. Masters, P. Keenan, P. Behrens, H. Drobny, H. Matloff; second: K. McLaughlin, C. Malmi, B. Hebbard, S. Ranslow, C. Scott, M. Levinson; third: M. Highfill, R. Weaver, M. Edwards, C. Walsh, P. Pfau, B. Patterson gained election to Honor Society in their senior year. Amid exciting if somewhat confused ceremony, the newly chosen members learned of their election as President Ed Tabor announced their names at an assembly. After a grand march to the stage, the new inductees listened to a speech by Principal Earl Schubert, expectantly awaiting the moment when they would finally take the pledge of membership. No one ever remembered this detail. Undaunted, the members, at heart if not officially, joined the society by meeting their proud parents at the traditional tea. Previous mishaps like the sudden disappearance of table cloths had been remedied in time.

Honor Society: front row: N. Neyhard, R. Speck, J. Candela, P. Earl; second: D. Changaris, K. Offutt, D. McCellan, P. Elliott; third: K. Jones, A. Ruebush, C. St. John, S. DiGiacomo, K. West, L. Sober; fourth: J. Dalton, D. Christeller, P. Van Alstine, D. Bigelow, D. Snyder, R. Horn, Vice-president B. Kao although meeting infrequently as a group, do gather to listen to speakers. The State Department Adviser on Cuban Affairs, Mr. John Crimmins, informed club members of the recent political history, including the government's involvement in the Bay of Pigs fiasco, and of the current situation in Cuba at an October meeting. After discussing causes of the shortage of every sort of technical equipment and food, and relating these to recent sugar crop failures, Mr. Crimmins projected conditions into the future and appraised solutions to the islands problems. Although speculating on the possibility that a rebel might assassinate premier Castro, the expert thought it unlikely that the present government would collapse because of favorable public opinion toward it, and pointed to more practical methods to oust the dictatorship.



Jazzy Juxtaposition of Deadlines Juggles Journalists into Honorary via Banqueting

Quill and Scroll: Taking longest of any group to line up, G. Smyers, S. Cohen, N. Braymer, President J. Candela (front), E. Tabor (behind), H. Lemp, K. McLaughlin, P. Ruegg grin; the rest of the staffs bear it. Students whose work on publications shows devotion as well as quality are eligible for Quill and Scroll, the Journalism Honor Society. Newcomers were inducted at a banquet. Mr. Jack Anderson, Drew Pearson's assistant, spoke.



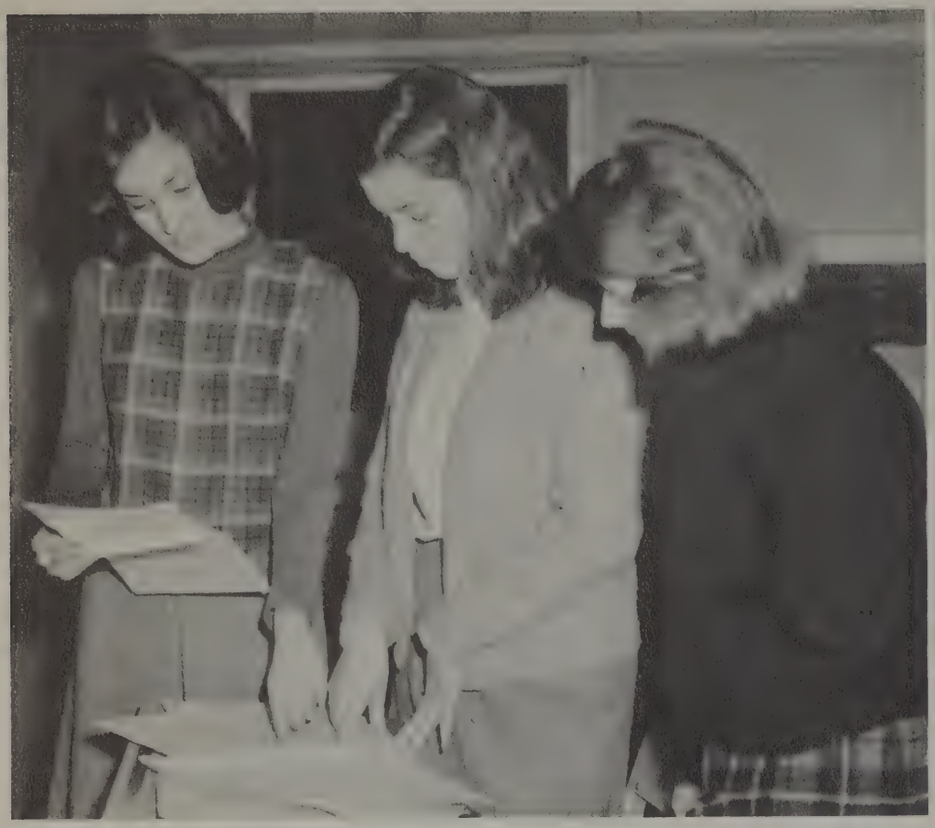
Jackie Candela fights writer's cramp as she addresses the 325 invitations for the Quill and Scroll banquet to send to students working on publications.

On January 21, Marc Dzikowski and 16 other inductees took the solemn oath of the Thespian Society. Miss Marilyn Price, sponsor of the honorary, administered the pledge.

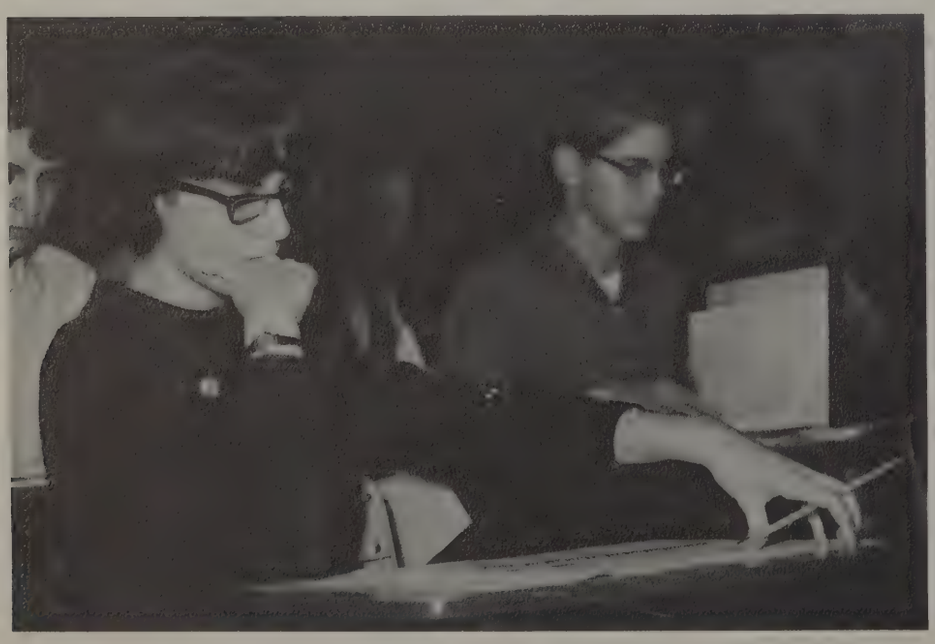
Thespians: front row: B. Thompson, Secretary-Treasurer A. Rasmussen, T. Huber, President S. Sarles, S. Fedelchak; second: E. Savage, D. Harper, T. Statton, N. Crosswhite; third: D. Miller, D. Franks, J. Kruse, W. Pearson, F. Maidment, members of the nation-wide honorary dramatic society, under the guidance of Miss Marilyn Price, hold an annual June banquet.

Tutoring tips are Spanish Honor Society President Fred Leatherman's province as he explains the schedule to the club's two members, Jean Plough and Dale Goldberg. Restricted by size, the group inducted new members from Spanish 3 and 4 students.

Coffin Lends Orderly Communication That Spirals Beyond Smoke Signals



Pages 124-125 undergo inspection as planner Karen Brooks explains a layout to Nancy Braymer and Suzanne Schneider in preparation for the 74-page February deadline.



Cringing at revelations of her past school's yearbook mistakes, former South American student, Felicity Flores, notes Sponsor Evelyn D. Wittman's advice and warnings.

More than smoke signals filled the need for ready communication: the yearbook preserved memories of high school experiences; the newspaper covered current school events; and the literary magazine conveyed student ideas.

A yearbook, a factual record of the year's events, a community's picture of the school, is most important, a book to jog the private memory of each student. After training in Yearbook Club, the Windup staff learned to preserve these memories by putting the essence of high school between covers. Learning all sides of yearbook producing, staff members specialized in one area after gaining understanding of the whole. They designed a four-foot "coffin" with 44 slots to hold, spread by spread, copy, pics, and layout. The coffin fulfilled its purpose: pieces did not stray, but the usual harassment prevailed in the long hours after school and on Saturdays to put together, before deadlines, another top book in the National and Columbia Scholastic Press Association critiques.

Sister to the yearbook in expertness, the Medalist and All-American Pitch went on a weekly instead of monthly schedule this year. This created better coverage of news and accomplished editorial sequence of some influence. Two year-long issues were support of an Honor System and a revision of National Honor Society admission procedures. Staff members on the newspaper acquired basics in their junior year when they served as reporters for journalism class.

The Spectator shared student ideas through publishing poems and short stories which, begun as English assignments or as optional creations, found their way to the magazine staff for evaluation. After heated discussion and suggested revisions, the staff finally agreed on superior articles. Spectator staff members took a test to determine their writing ability. They were the middlemen in the line of literary communication.

Faithfully, late buses or fog, examinations or term papers, these hardy, motivated sophomores and juniors turned up to hear Mrs. Evelyn D. Wittman's lectures on layout, copy count, and what makes a yearbook. Before very long, in fact after the first lecture that told them what a title page must have, they had become expert at spotting vital omissions from books of other schools. Especially fun was the caustic review of college yearbooks from the Guidance Office very few of which met the acid test of a little knowledge going a long way.

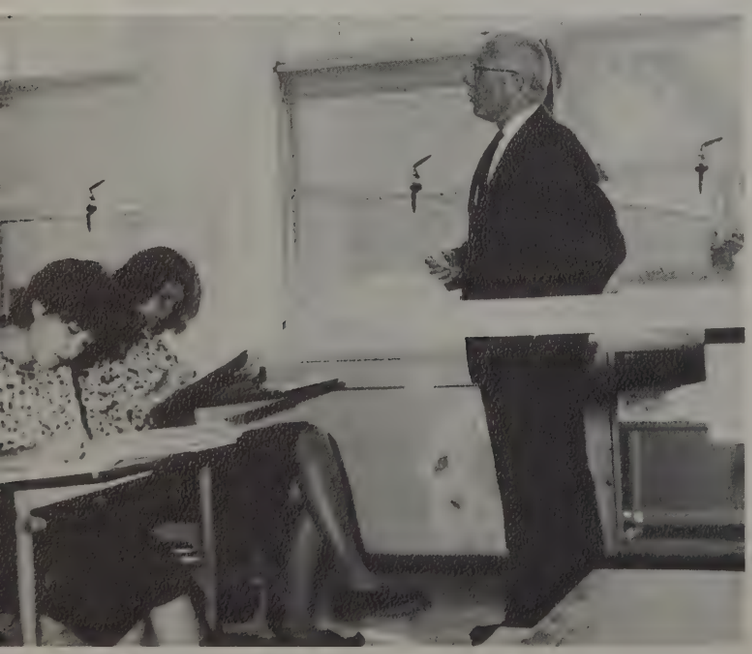
Journalism students learn how to turn who's, why's, when's, where's, how's and what's into readable and informative newspaper copy by serving as reporters, assigned regular beats. They put out one issue on their own each spring, and take on special assignments. Seniors rate Pitch staff if they have proved their ability as journalism students during junior year. Footing It to Resistive Sources of News, Reporters Say Editing Beats Leg Work

Mr. Joseph Hall's experiences as Senate AP correspondent intrigue Beth Durham and Jean Balderson in journalism.



Lorraine Ruskin and Mark Bloomfield turn in Windup money. In four years no publication rep has failed to match his money with receipts.

Pitch staff members Jim Fernandes; Editor-in-Chief Dave Cox; Darlene Shields, assistant to Ginny Smyers, Business Editor; Jon Feldman, Page 3 Editor; Ginny Hoff, Page 2 Editor; Stu Sessoms; and Sharon Cohen, News Editor, plan for a Pitch "surprise," but no matter how secretive Dave is, the whole school knows his secrets. Writing the weekly newspaper, the staff also organized birthday parties to assure themselves of nourishment during their sixth period.

"Please stand for the flag salute," chants PA announcer Ron Holtzman, as part of the daily ritual of morning announcement. To the tune of his voice and the voices of his peers, Carol Malmi and Jim Weaver, students begin the day with a news barrage.

Music, Food of Love, Nourishment For Transported Singers, Players

Madrigals: front row: President R. Mason, Vice-president S. Kelley, D. Scott, C. Bell, T. Statton; second: Secretary F. Gerhard, D. Harper, C. Schadeberg, J. Sinderson, P. Ruegg, B. Crawford, A. Ruebush; third: P. DeCoursey, J. Rother, J. Chaffee, B. Miller, M. Nelson, P. Schmehl, D. Norton are well voiced in the intricacies of six-part harmonies through hours of grueling rehearsals. This time proves valuable to them, though, when they make annual rounds to sing Christmas concerts. Particularly popular for luncheon programs, the group sang for the Bethesda Woman's Club, the Couples' Club at the Bethesda Presbyterian Church, and the Western Woman's Club in early December. Most enjoyable of their holiday ventures is the annual Madrigal reunion party. A pot luck dinner, organized by present Madrigal girls and attended by director, Miss Virginia Harder, and graduated Madrigals, precedes songfest.

Concert Chorus: Page 131, front row: D. Scott, S. Richardson, L. Carothers, C. Hahn, L. O'Meara, F. Gerhard; second: R. Mason, C. Watson, W. Jarman, M. Lewis, D. Osborne, P. Cowling, B. Nelson, M. Maxon, A. Ware, C. Verta sent three representatives to the Maryland State Chorus in Baltimore after intensive auditioning. As part of this group of high school students from throughout the state, Ann Ruebush, John Rother, and Robin Mason performed for the teachers' convention in progress in October. Dr. Warner Lawson director of music at Howard University, led the chorus of 280 which sang "Roll, Jordan, Roll," "My Lord, What a Mornin'," and a Bach Motet in concert. During the course of the weekend, interested participants also auditioned for the Easter Division Chorus scheduled to meet in Buffalo, N. Y., in February. Great was the three Spartans' joy at their acceptance.

Giving their all to "Ain't'a That 'a Good News," a favorite Negro Spiritual, Concert Chorus sopranos Ann Ruebush and Terry Smith concentrate on their rehearsal.

Crême de la crême of the choral crop is Madrigals directed by Miss Virginia Harder. This relatively small group, talented and enjoyable, performs Olde English rounds and madrigals, a basic part of their repertoire. Picked from the Concert Chorus ranks by tryouts, these singers rehearse extracurricularily at least two days a week.

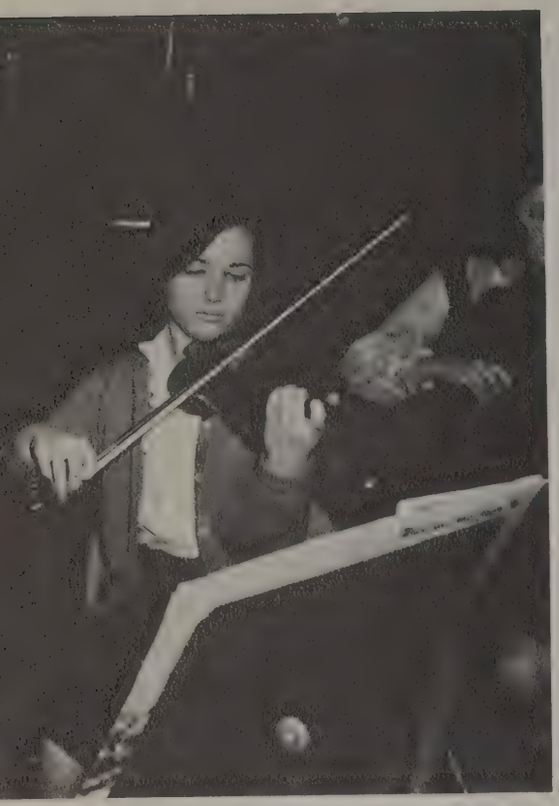
Both Concert Chorus and Concert Band wound up the 1963-64 school year with an unforgettable trip to the New York World's Fair. Invited by the Maryland Pavilion to present the principal's "Maryland, My Heritage" program, the group found the trip interesting but lacking in musical value.

Music from the Romantic Era provided the theme for a February concert, Soirée Romantique. Music by Mozart, Tchaikowsky, Goldmark, and Schubert; a short operatic production; and the ballet Swan Lake, effort of orchestra and Terpsichoreans, made the evening memorable.

The Concert Band engaged in another of the annual band exchange programs, this year with Fairlawn High School in New Jersey.

The big musical event of the year, Camelot, brought to a head efforts of orchestra and Concert Chorus. Long and frequent rehearsals of songs from the show, Camelot, "What Do The Simple Folks Do?," "If Ever I Would Leave You," and many others culminated in an unforgettable acme of musical success.

Orchestral Romanticists Woo Tchaikovsky; Brassily, Horns Create Holiday Ensemble



Early morning practices for String Ensemble do not always find Member Ann Oberle wide awake, but the music of the rehearsal soon remedies the situation.

With French Horn poised for an entrance in Tchaikovsky's "Le Lac des Cygnes," Becky Miller cautiously counts out the endless measures of rests during a rehearsal.

Orchestra: front row: S. Schlager, T. Peltier, L. Johnson, A. Oberle; second: R. Otterson, M. Yano, R. Green, S. Eden, J. Paine; third: C. Ness, B. Malmgren, D. Catt, G. Dawson, M. Leet, A. Udenfriend; fourth: R. Goldkind, D. Ravitz, V. Nye, P. Lawrence, D. Henschel, J. West, R. Sillcox. Orchestra members breathe much more easily after the end of long afternoon and evening rehearsals which end in presentations like the one in May of Alan Lerner and Frederick Loewe's musical, Camelot.

Concert Band: upper: front row: R. Arbuckle, K. Schwering, B. Geiger, B. White, R. Horn, P. Goldberg, R. Deutsch; second: M. Jacobs, S. Norton, J. Hudson, J. Gutekunst, E. Gronkiewicz, T. Baker, M. Saphir, M. Jagmier, J. Rhudy; fourth: T. Good, R. Banvard, M. Anderson, E. Tabor, M. Anderson, D. Martin, S. Buchwalter. The Orchestra's concert schedule requires quick assembly work on the part of its members. A Pops Concert and a concert at the National Institutes of Health called for its services.

String Ensemble: front row: M. Yano, B. Durham, B. Haynes, A. Oberle; second: D. Catt, M. Anfinsen, M. Tabor, C. Ness play to their own and Sponsor Gilbert Muir's heart's content whenever a special call on their talent affords opportunity for performing.

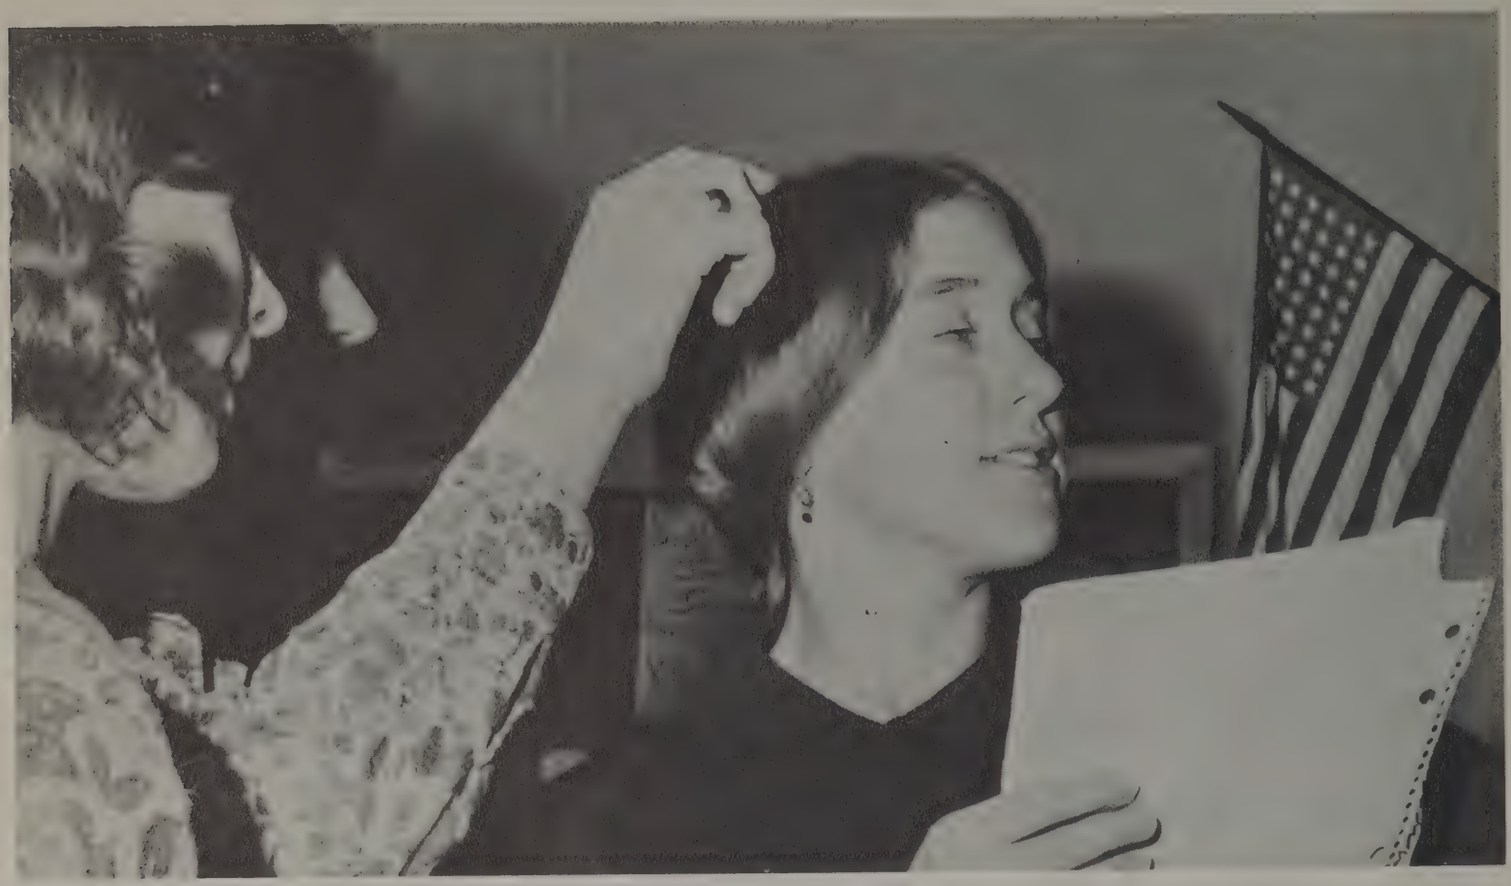
Director Muir Shrugs Off Disapprobation Of Musical Marchers' Tireless Tramping

Marching Band: front row: S. McFarland, J. Cranford, C. Masters; second: J. O'Meara, D. Minor, S. Jensen, G. Allen, P. DeLuca, E. Becker; third: B. Lukens, T. Lane, A. Moldawer, D. Kordella, G. Morris, D. Gilchrist, R. Erickson, J. Elkin, D. Stephenson. The band is strictly for the student's experience having no concert schedule.

Pep Band: front row: Drum Major E. Becker, J. Gootenberg, R. Kirby, B. Bottamiller, T. Reed; second: D. Meyersburg, R. Arbuckle, D. VanAlstine, V. Rockney, P. Negus; third: D. Stephenson, P. VanAlstine, D. Sager, H. LeVine; fourth: M. Anderson, D. Gilchrist, C. Bowen, P. Hodge, M. Anderson. Have you ever been stopped in shock by a small band marching merrily down the hall? If so, you've met the Pep Band. This 19 instrumentalist group, under the leadership of Ed Baker, plays at the football games cheering the Spartans on with the pep song. During BCC Week, the bedraggled Baron's burial procession provides an excellent opportunity for the Pep Band to show its spirit.

Marching Band: front row: L. Williams, N. Gale, R. Beatty; second: N. Vitto, R. Bieri, L. Johnson, P. Mico, J. Clifford, S. Eaton, B. Ranslow; third: D. Abbey, M. Myers, S. Fletcher, J. Piccone, R. Chases, R. Moore. Director Gilbert Muir had the band play at football games but thought marching musically worthless.

Selflessness of Service Organization Softens Competitiveness of Selection



Crowding to the blackboard to illustrate graphically their differing points of view, Keyettes Pattie Earl, Stephanie McFarland, and Karen McLaughlin lead the discussion on revisions in the recommendation forms that teachers fill out on all applicants.

Dorians: front row: Treasurer R. Speck, Parliamentarian F. Griffith, S. Searles, K. Kull, President N. Gatlin, P. Ruegg, J. Paine, K. Jones; second: Secretary C. Taylor, J. Leatherwood, S. Flather, Vice-president E. Comee, I. Niemi, J. Cranford, L. Stradinger, A. Ware; third: L. DelVecchio, S. Nickel, L. Lawson, B. Tayman, N. Westrell, D. Montgomery, L. Ruskin; fourth: D. Ravitz, C. Cole, D. Dibeler, S. Hutson, C. Dodd, J. Geldermann, D. Norton, S. Hunley. The Dorians, sponsored by Mrs. Josephine K. Schlagel, perform assorted services for the community besides working in the office and at the student information window. To help anxious basketball patrons, they provide a free coat check at all the games; and to refresh listeners, they sell refreshments at Pops Concerts. Employing creative skills, this winter they made favors for patients and place mats for retarded children.

Because the responsibility for attacking poverty, ignorance, and the rest of society's ills will ultimately fall on today's students, they must not only understand the problems, but they must also acquire the knowledge necessary to solve them. High school service clubs make some of this awareness possible. Working either in unison or individually, they organize and carry out projects on both international and local levels.

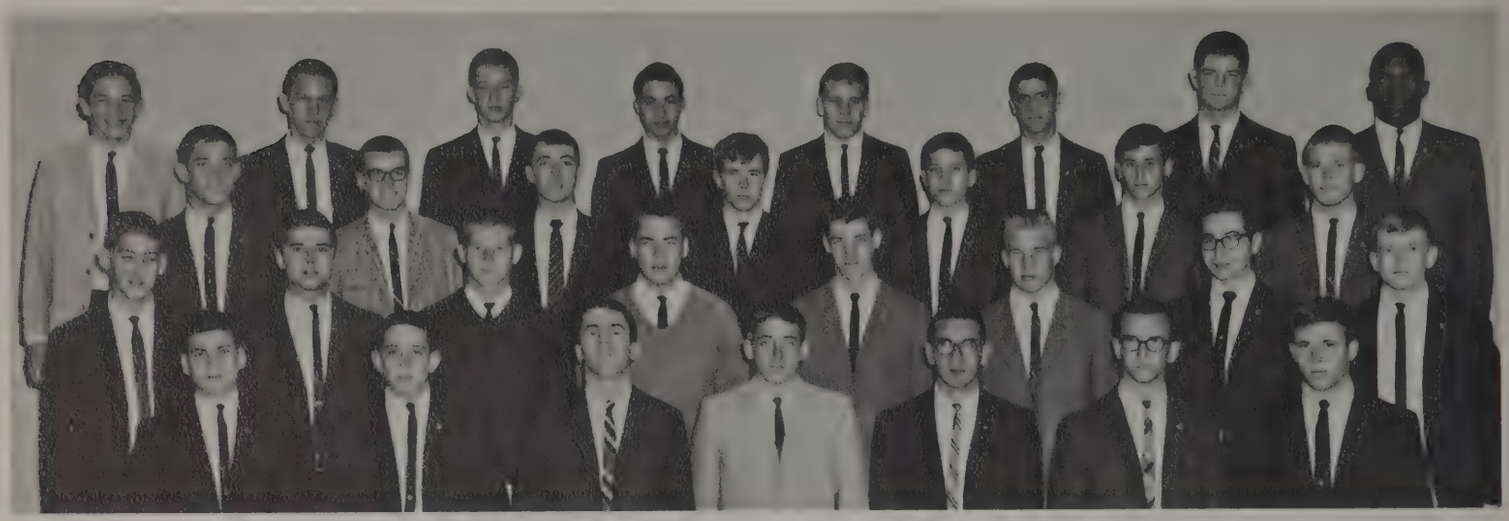
Joining forces to extend good will during the holiday season, members of the Keyette, Dorian, Key, and Wheel clubs sponsored a Christmas workshop, devoting a Saturday morning to refurbishing and making toys for the underprivileged and the ill of the community. Meanwhile, junior Tri-Hi-Y members played Santa Claus to patients of Resmore Sanatorium, making them tray favors, and then caroling. Senior Tri-Hi-Y-ers also joined the surge of holiday giving by creating Christmas placemats for Junior Village.

WJ do-gooders also serve internationally. Proceeds from Dorian bake sales and the Valentine Mailbox found their way to the S.S. Hope and the Heart Fund. Keyettes satisfied the Spartan sweet tooth with candy they sold to make money for the Peace Corps.

Organizing and numbering hangers, Dorian coat-check girls, Libby Comee and Janice Gelderman, prepare to open the service room which operated for all home basketball games.

Keyettes: front row: J. Sewell, Secretary B. Wilfand, President P. Earl, K. Dunn, S. Schneider, S. Thomas, S. Kelley; second: Treasurer J. Luckom, S. Burtner, K. Offutt, P. Behrens, B. Malmgren, B. Durham, J. Roudebush, K. McLaughlin, C. Crippen; third: V. Wolfe, J. Gibson, M. Gaarden, J. Remias, N. Braymer, J. Munby, K. Moeller, S. Costello; fourth: C. Kovacic, B. Tigert, J. Perry, P. MacDermod, K. Wellman, P. Mattix, H. Lemp, Vice-president J. Balderson, S. McFarland. Taking their motto, "We Serve," to heart, the Keyettes, sponsored by Miss Louise Kamenjar, launch a number of successful projects each year, this time the sale of candy for the Peace Corps. Within the school, they aid Mr. Lewis Francis by processing the monthly IBM attendance cards. The Keyette-sponsored college afternoon, held during Christmas vacation, featured panels of alumnae.

Key To Importance: Big Wheel Operators Whose Herculean Humping Helps School



Key Club: front row: J. Valenza, Secretary M. Hanscom, L. Johnson, J. Rogers, Vice-president H. Drobny, G. Berman, Treasurer G. Atcheson; second: D. Rubenstein, B. McCarten, P. Lucas, J. Martin, G. Arnold, D. Kiddon, A. Feld, D. Stradinger, T. Haselton, B. Leeder, L. Burley. Among its numerous charitable functions, the Key Club, sponsored by Mr. Bruce O. Sivertsen, helped the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association organize and mail Christmas Seals. At Christmas time the Key and Wheel Clubs with other service clubs helped decorate Christmas trees in the courtyard and in the gym for the Sno-ball dance. They solicited advertisements to raise money to publish football programs containing information on the home Varsity and on the weekly opposition. Other services of the Key Club this year included ushering at school plays and social functions, selling refreshments, and aiding the office secretaries in mailing out PTA circulars.

Wheel Club: front row: Secretary L. Guthman, H. Matloff, R. Hollander, J. Cobb, R. Deutsch; second: H. Danver, J. Evans, B. Baker, G. Page, Treasurer R. Haselton, B. Kao, D. Crosswhite, T. Meehan, T. Garrett, C. Melick assisted the office secretaries, ushered, and peddled cokes and refreshments at social functions in conjunction with the members of other service clubs. The Wheel Club, sponsored by Mr. Lewis Sanford, undertakes the sale of candy canes and decoration of the gym at Christmas. The members also aid the PTA, in sending out circulars, and teachers, in carrying books and performing other odd chores. In order to increase their funds, club-members sold, for the first time, Johnson Jamas, bright red cotton night shirts reminiscent of Rip Van Winkle. Customers crowded to buy the $2.50 item; they never said whether they wore it. The final touch was downing Key Club 12-0 in the touch football game.

Key Club member, Louis Johnson, exercises his arm while waiting to be recognized at a regular Tuesday morning meeting. At the 1964 Activity Fair the Key Club sponsored a sponge throwing booth. Junior club members took turns sticking their heads through a hole in a sheet and getting pelted with soggy sponges thrown by vicious school mates. Money raised by this sent two members to a Dallas Convention.

Key Club custodian Don Rubinstein sweeps a dirty wall while the club exterminator, Bob Park, murders mice with a quickly reverberating yo-yo. These cheerfully performed chores are typical of the Key Club crew's new era of service and charity.

Keyette requirements are simple: earnest girls doing a serious service with an attitude to match. Through teacher evaluation of initiative, motivation, responsibility, industry, and leadership, 20 names go on a list from which members select a final 10.

Drawing Membership from Entire School, Service Clubs Slyly Satisfying to Egos

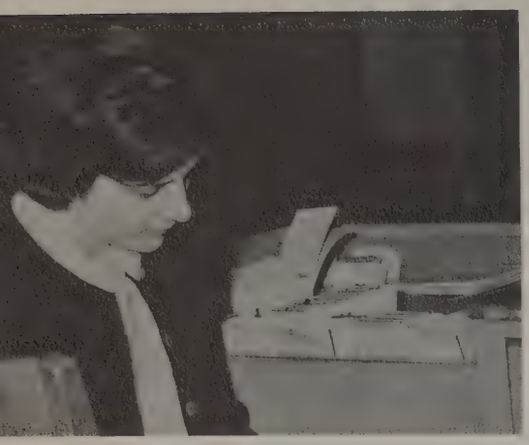
Nothing is too much for a Keyette. Marcia Gaarden demonstrates the rigors of devotion by skipping her lunch to sell basketball tickets to students like Tom Dorman.

'Pork Barrel' Interest in Activities Furnishes Something for Everybody



Taking advantage of a slack in library work, Paulette Long leafs through a recently acquired slang source book. Like Rocky Crosswhite, a lab assistant, she gives a period a day to helping. Students receive performance ratings but no course credit for this.

In the interest clubs available to him, the student found participation its own reward. Designed to extend and apply classroom theories, clubs helped students find themselves. First of all, they extended the range of experience. Among helpfulness, intellect, art, vocations, hobbies, and prodding for enthusiasm, a student could choose, a choice which some faculty members thought should be limited but never was. If a student were interested in medicine but unable to take a course in science, for example, he might have joined Medical Careers Club. Second, students probed their interests, as in the Stamp and Coin Club where members learned from each other's collections. Finally, students met other students with mutual interests.

For those who enjoyed serving, opportunities abounded. Student workers in the school store offered convenience in shopping to their customer classmates. Student bank tellers relieved their sponsor from many details of bookkeeping and money handling. Devoting a class period each day, Driver Education assistants and audio-visual crew members, pursued in common, according to the activity, a uniform helpfulness to students and teachers.

Scholastic activities in the Math Team, in Debate and Forensic Clubs, on the "It's Academic" team, in Biology and Earth Science Clubs, in lab assistantships, and in the Foreign Language Clubs extended the curricular work of the classroom, providing opportunity to use those interests fostered in the classroom. Math Team participants, competing ten times during the year, pitted sharpened minds and pencils against other schools. Repeated practicing and hours of systematic and thorough research prepared Debate and Forensic competitors for their matches. Spanish, German, French, and Latin Language Clubs enabled students to apply what they had learned in the classroom and to pursue foreign cultural activities which increased and extended their knowledge outside of class. Biology and Earth Science Clubs members, hearing guests speak on subjects in their fields, found their interest piqued. The new methods of experimentation in physical science intrigued lab assistants while aiding teachers.

Drama and Art Clubs, a new Folk Singing Club and Terpsichoreans, and Semanon invoked the arts. One-act plays and worthy movies, handsome posters and beautiful show cases, vocalists and pseudo-Segovians paid homage to the Muses. Terpsichore herself could not have choreographed better school productions than her namesakes and the Dance Club. Semanon members and cadets were the set designers, stage crews, prop men—in short, handmaidens for the theater art they served in the many school productions and the musical.

In the future clubs, Future Teachers of America, Future Business Leaders of America, Future Homemakers of America, and the Medical Careers Club, formerly Future Nurses, students caught glimpses of types of occupations they might later wish to pursue.

Hobby Clubs provided a sharing of interests with classmates. In chess and bridge, members found themselves moved at their weekly meetings. Philatelists and numismatists of the Stamp and Coin Club swapped stamps, coins, and yarns for their collections. Rifle Club meetings kept their members on target.

Six Majorettes, 24 Pom pons, and nine Cheerleaders, exhorting classmates muscularly, vocally, and pulchritudinously, called up shouts, spirits, and unification throughout the football and basketball seasons.

Thus the interest clubs with their panorama of activities supplied the outlet for talent, curiousity, scholastic interest, and future ambition, which rounded out and complemented the academic pursuits.

It's Academic: front row: B. Jones, H. Slavin, P. Pfau, R. Winkler. Quick thinking and wide knowledge are the prerequisites for these gamesters who represent this school for the television competitions. Three tentative members and two alternates for the quiz show won their places when approximately 20 of the school's highest ranking students auditioned in a mock quiz in May, 1964. Although the five could not learn definitely of their selection until late this winter, they began preparing over weekends to try to better last year's record. The preceding Spartan trio defeated two other area high schools in their first match by winning points for their speed and correctness. In a second match, though, they bowed to Regina.

Tolson, D. Kletzker, J. Wiles, C. Schadeberg, D. Goldberg. Latin night life hummed during the Activity Fair when the Spanish Club went into the night club business. Spanish flamenco dancers twisted and twirled to the rhythm of guitar and bongos played by their Latin friends. During these performances, food and light beverages were provided for visitors. The entire effort proved to be a rousing success.

With such pleasure from Latin cuisine, the club decided to try again. A hardy constitution with numbed taste buds was a requirement for those members who visited the El Bodegon restaurant in downtown Washington. They not only learned to eat the fiery food but also learned the art of drinking wine from a poron. This involves squeezing the wine out of a goatskin bag and catching the stream with a corner of the mouth. Many chins were wet when these pseudo-Spaniards tried it. Consumption of enchiladas, tamales, and frejoles terminated the hot evening. The culinary excitement was such fun for club members that they resolutely decided to revisit the restaurant again later in the year after their digestive systems had recovered.

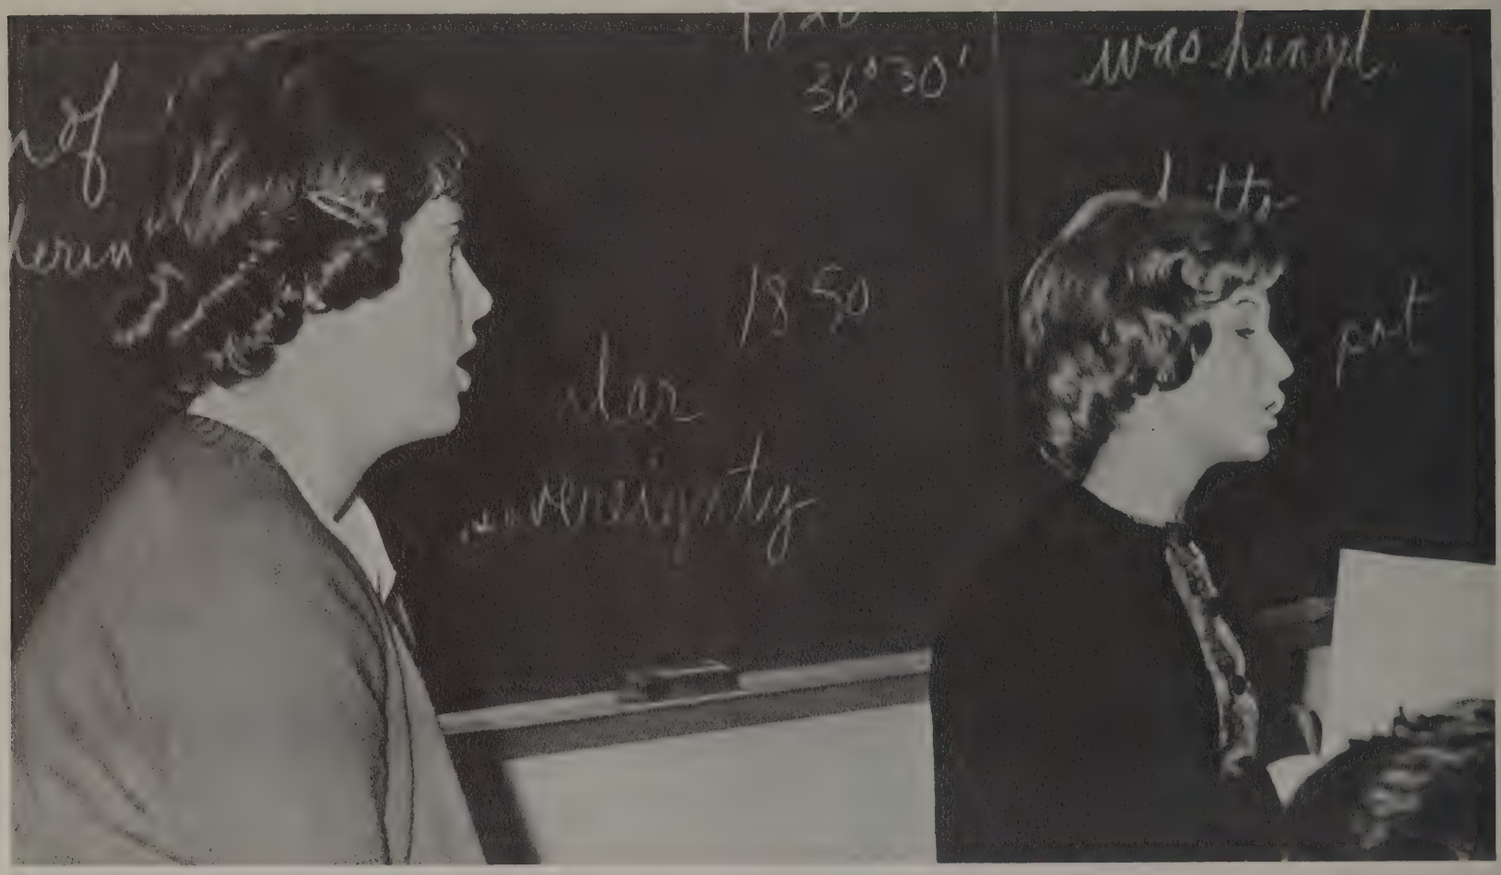
Future Homemaking, Business, Teaching Offer Experiences in Anticipatory Clubs



Though Future Teachers of America members may eventually be expounding on the lesson of the Harper's Ferry rebel, they must also attend to current club business. At weekly meetings, Marjea Brand, Janet Warfield, and other potential pedagogues learn of administrative and teaching problems from speakers like Mr. William Hinga and Mr. Earl Schubert. Members assist teachers with paperwork and errands. This insight into education helps FTAers decide if pedogogy is really the career for them.

Twice a month members of the Medical Careers Club meet to discuss their aspirations to join the many researchers and practitioners in medical careers. The 30 regular members, including Julia Middleton, Harriet Herrerick, Janet Dimmers, and Karen West, are often hosts to speakers from many branches of medicine at their meetings. These speakers included the head doctor and nurse from The National Institutes of Health, the president of the American Podiatry Association, an optometrist from the Eye Research Foundation, an area dentist, and the professor of pharmacy at Maryland University. Through the films and lectures of these professionals, members catch an insight into this field.

With the finesse of a professional bridge player Frank Rosenberg plays from the board and crosses his fingers as he waits for poker-faced George Polland to place the deciding card. George, Frank, and George's partner, Tommy Meleney, joined bridge club to learn about the finer points of the game while enjoying the company of fellow bridge-enthusiasts. They met weekly to accomplish this purpose, usually in the otherwise forbidden comfort of the fashionable senior lounge. In addition to playing for the fun and challenge of the game, bridge clubbers competed with their counterparts in near-by schools at various times during the year. They tied the arch-enemy, Bethesda - Chevy Chase High School, in one match but lost the play-off.

"Checkmate!" the call of triumphant Chess Club members, rings through the halls near Sponsor Chauncey Ford's room each Thursday afternoon. After initially discovering the difference between a rook and a bishop, learning how to castle kings, and maneuvering endlessly for an expert game, members aspire to the Chess Team. Challenging one of the five team players, they must win best of three games before gaining this august stature. These teamsters, Phil Collier, Michael Spitz, Larry Leonard, Mark Bloomfield, and Don Piccone in order of rank, push their pawns at weekly intramural meets. Playing Sidwell Friends they won two, lost one, and drew three; against St. John's they won two, lost three; against Montgomery Blair they lost two and drew three; and against Einstein, they won two, lost one, and drew one. Top players may become members of the United States Chess Federation. Specialists rate them during games Masters, Experts, or Class A, B, C, or D.

Sartorial boldness matches the musical tonsillotomy with which Dave Harper, a member of The Hustlers, participates in a Variety Show tryout.

Mike Donnally, rhythm guitar; Jeff Johnson, lead guitar; and Steve Jensen, drums, have played together for two years. Donnie Hindman, voice, joined the others at the beginning of this school year. Called The Herd, the boys, like similar groups in school established a musical group which played for discotheque devotees who wanted a change from records. Besides The Herd, Hustlers, Valors, Viscounts, Statics, and Reekers hold forth. With the frug, the watusi, and a full complement of gyrational gymnastics, swaying rooted to one spot, with music jiving, jerking, and jumping, with students in a state of mental abeyance with pure rhythm substituting for all other human response, a facsimile of Terpsichore, if no other Muse, reigned.

Relaxation Reclaims Weary Wrecks Muscularly or Brainily with Sports

Chris Tewell, a member of the Spartan Rifle Club, sites his target through the telescopic lens of his model 62 Winchester bolt-action rifle. He and the other 14 club members were chosen in tryouts in the beginning of the year. Tryouts are necessary because of limited target area. Sponsored by Mr. Robert P. Burke, they sharpen up their riflery skill once a week at the National Guard Armory in Rockville. Marksmen shoot from three positions, prone, kneeling, and standing, scoring a possible 100 points from each. They aim straight at the target, which is 50 feet away. So for this year, the club has shot down all opponents, including Peary, B-CC, and the Marine Corps Rifle team at the Parson's Memorial Match in Washington. They also compete in postal matches during November, December, January, and February in which they mail their targets in to be scored by experts. All members of the Spartan team are now National Capital Association members.

Vocalization, Prancing, Waving Mobilize Resounding Response Unheard in Class

The Green and White girls seen running, skipping, and hopping around school full of Spartan cheers go by one of these three names, Cheerleaders, Pom pons, or Majorettes. Their season started with the football games where the Majorettes and Pom pons performed at half time and the Cheerleaders never quit performing during the whole game. In gym classes and after school the girls practice their marching steps. While the Pom pons work with the Fuzzy, Bunny, Wayne, Irv, and Smiley, steps which one of originators named after a boy friend, the cheerleaders try out new steps in gym classes and the Majorettes practice for the County championship meet. This year the troops also participated in the action at football games. Joanne Cranford, Pat Behrens, and Connie Ware, while doing their best to show off the Walter Johnson Colors, find the Spartan audience a spirited one.

Their other march outside of school came during the Christmas season when they participated in the Bethesda Christmas Parade. The Pom pons took shape during the summer when the girls combined rolls of crepe paper into large balls which weigh a ton and fade in the rain. After every other game the girls revive their pom pons by replacing all the pieces lost during arm-waving performances. This year they cheered at basketball games.

Nymphs Turn Nimble in Sporty Society Which Buoyant Boys Back with Bending

The Varsity Club made its major project this year the sale of sweatshirts and T-shirts bearing Walter Johnson and the Spartan insignia on the front. The profits from these sales, which totaled over $200, went to the athletic fund for the purchase of new uniforms and equipment for varsity sports.

The members of the Gymkana Troupe devoted rigorous hours of practice to perfect their grueling routines on the parallel bars, uneven parallel bars, vaulting box, trampoline, and rings. Practices usually took place three days a week before school at 7:30 a.m. The troupe performed their normal routines plus several options in regularly scheduled meets at schools and YMCA's. The highlight of this year's performances was a special Christmas Program for elementary school patrols at Walt Whitman High School.

The Girls Sports Association allowed any female Spartan to participate actively in intramural basketball, field hockey, softball, and ping pong Tuesday and Thursday after school. The girls competed in organized teams in order to develop athletic proficiency and a healthy respect for sportsmanship.

Loss of three out of four left undaunted the 1964 Girls Volleyball Team. Chosen by tryouts by the physical education teachers, they played their four opponent schools in rough games. They lost to Einstein (8-15, 13-15, 10-15) and to Poolesville (18-15, 12-15, 13-15). Fighting determinedly, they won against Peary (15-8, 17-15, 15-5). Despite courage, firm resolution, and even some excellent plays, the girls lost their last match against Blair (5-15, 7-15, 4-15).

The Girls Honor Softball team handily defeated both Bethesda-Chevy Chase (7-3) and Poolesville (25-5) in 1964. Later, in a challenging game with Blair where the outcome wavered uncertainly, they lost (0-1).

This was the only school in the County last year to have a girls tennis team. Because they had no rivals, the girls played only intersquad games this first season.

Love of a different kind, known only to tennis players, involves Linda Frick as she practices on a court that doubles as a student parking lot.

Volleyball, Softball Spur Sportsmanship; Tennis Colleens Unique Team in County

Volleyball Team: A. Sarp, L. Comee, J. Fincutter, C. Tully, F. Wagner, P. Long displayed team spirit and cooperation while competing against teams from four other area schools. Each match consisted of three games, the games lasting eight minutes or until one team finally secured fifteen points.

Strengthening Girls' 'Gardez!' Technique Fortuitous Benefit of Fencing Footwork

Fencing appeared for the first time. The girls responded to the new elective like kittens to catnip.

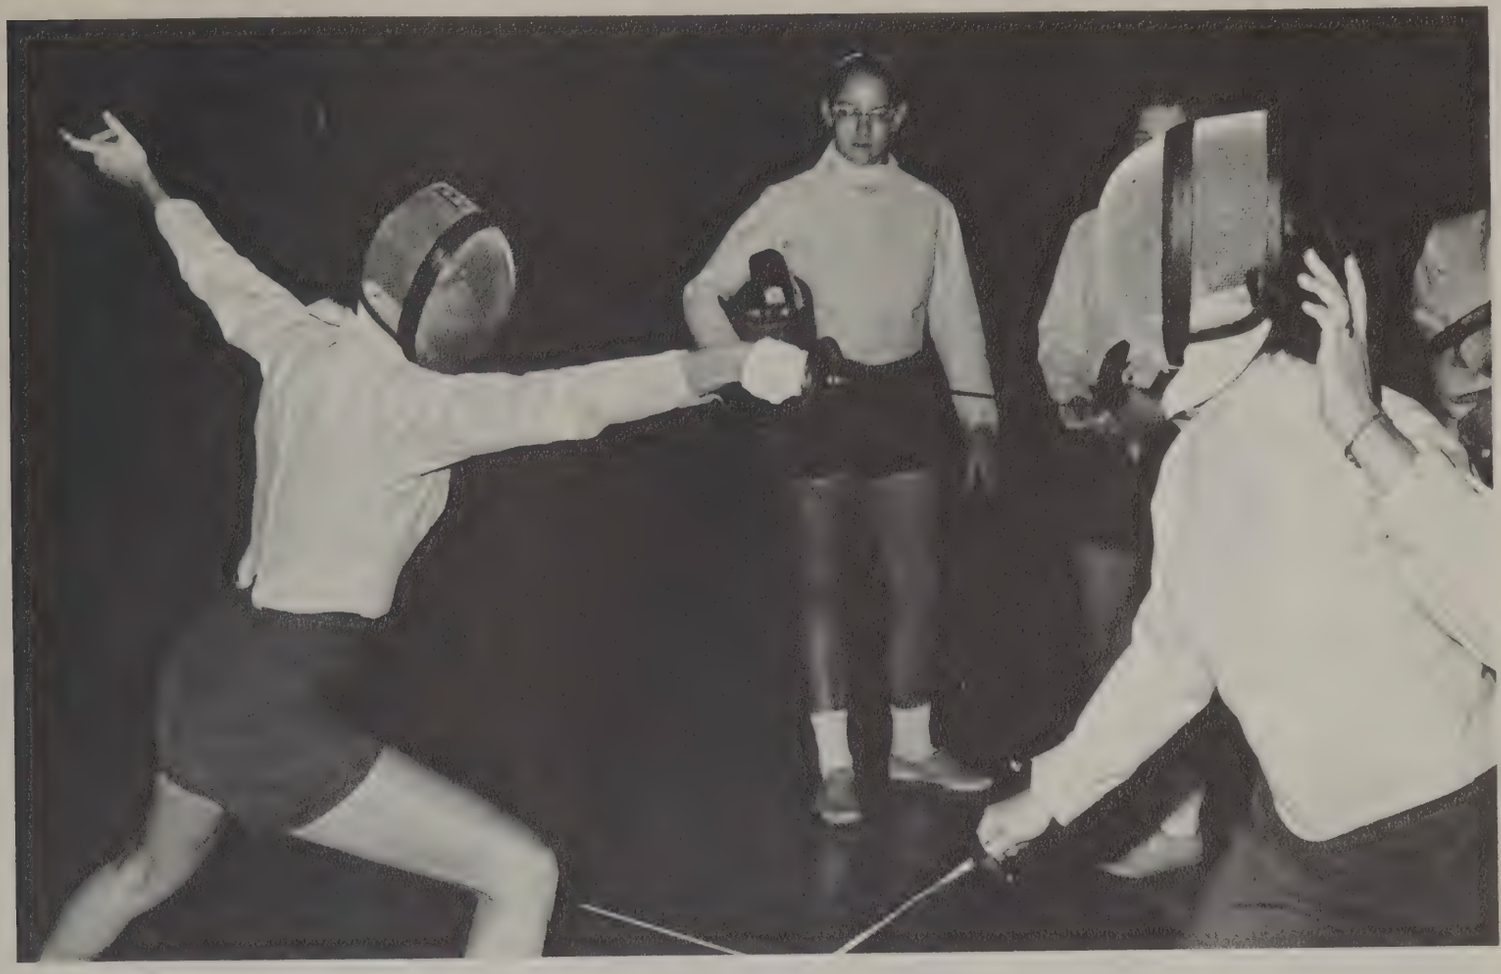
Though plagued by defeat from Damascus, Honor Hockey Team colleens tied Poolesville and Gaithersburg, and lost to Walt Whitman, Northwood, and Bethesda-Chevy Chase. The gain, win or lose, was in the fun the girls had. Outstanding event of the year was tying undefeated Gaithersburg, 2-2. During the first half, the lasses let Gaithersburg score two points, but in the second half they retaliated with such stamina that they recouped.

Like their hockey counterparts, the bouncing belles enthusiastically lost to Whitman by 4 points and to Northwood by 10 points. They won over Sherwood, 33-22; Poolesville, 25-11; and Churchill, 30-19. The close came with Sportsday Feb. 7 when the girls tied Northwood and Einstein for first place. To do this they won from Damascus, Blair, and Bethesda-Chevy Chase.

Determined Linda Widmayer, Jean Wilson, Margaret Dimmers, and Candy Sutton, complete with bracelets and rings, stretch their talents to try out for Honor Team.

Team coaches, Miss Ann Lambert and Miss Helen Cook, worked to develop athletic capability and good sportsmanship. The girls enjoyed the season despite record shortcomings.

Executing an accomplished balestra, Judith Wellman touches her opponent, Carol Carlson, while onlooker, Jean McAulay, awaits her turn. Fencing, offered by the Girls Physical Education Department for the first time this year, is available after school, too, for dueling enthusiasts. Miss June A. Kennard, a new teacher this year, is teaching the two new courses, fencing and modern dance.



Honor Basketball: front row: P. Deenihan, C. Sutton, J. Wilson; second: A. Barch, J. Handy, B. Geiger, L. Widmayer, C. Wilfert, Co-captain L. Abdow; third: Co-captain K. Reichardt, L. Through fighting spirit, athletic ability, and prudent practice, the girls labored, isolated, and overcame their first game loss to Whitman.

The Spartan nine, coached by Mssrs. Paul Tarasuk and Melvin Samuelowitz, gained momentum to finish the season by winning four of their last six games, in spite of an inauspicious start. Glen Holtje and Craig Rohrer led the team in hitting with three and two homers, respectively. These were not enough to win games, however, for only Phil Corddry batted over .300. Other notable players were Skip O'Dea, Bill Tomb, and Alan Feld.

Coaching base in the Springbrook game, catcher Dick Bigelow hopefully concentrates on the batter.

All eyes concentrate on the ball which Spartan right fielder, Craig Rohrer, has sent sailing to left field to pace the WJ attack against visiting Northwood. A lack of batting support within the team, however, caused the Spartans to drop a 4-1 decision.

"Head down, left arm straight, weight on left leg," thinks Spartan golfer, Donald Stoectklein, as he lines up his chip shot on the WJ campus. Constant practice and valuable experience make Don a vital member of the golf team. He and several other members can always be found sharpening up their game at the local driving ranges and country club links. Their devotion and skill paid off handsomely in a clutch performance over Gaithersburg and the 8½ to ½ trouncing of B-CC. With such stars as Don returning, the golfing future for the 1965 season looks swinging.

Spartan net men, under the coaching of Mr. Robert Hibbett, struggled through a season of moral rather than material gains. The team, consisting of two sophomores, five juniors, and only one senior, suffered from lack of experienced players. While contributing greatly to the team's three victories, however, Sophomores John Morgan and Bob Hollander, and Juniors Ivars Plavnicks and Larry Leonard gained valuable experience for victorious campaigns in 1965. The highlight of the tennis schedule was the Spartans' decisive seven to one victory over visiting Springbrook.

The golf team strove to repeat its championships of the previous two years. Although they fell slightly short of their goal, the boys achieved a winning season under the supervision of Mr. James Gilmore.

Star member of the senior-stocked team was Phil Etchison, who not only helped in capturing most of the Spartan match victories, but also placed high in the Middle Atlantic Schoolboy Championship. Junior Steve Devine and Sophomore Larry Gordon provided the talent that created a bright outlook for the following season.

Concentration, careful timing, and a consistent stroke set John Morgan up for a fast, flat serve during a practice session at the Naval Medical Center. First aspiring to become a tennis pro four years ago, John has worked diligently to perfect his game. Since his success last year in capturing the number one position on the Spartan tennis squad, his aggressive tactics and humming volleys have won him the admiration of his team and those of neighboring schools during the season of rough matches.

Although the Spartans fell short of a winning season, their hard work and added finesse paid off in handy victories over Georgetown Prep, Maret School, and Springbrook as the whole team came through in singles and doubles.

Biceps Bulge As Track Team Sets Records With Harriers Taking Sixth of 29 Places

After wallowing in the bottom of the county standings for the past several years, the track team, coached by Mr. James Kline and Mr. Chauncey Ford, flexed its muscles to hoist itself up the ladder the spring of 1964.

Stocked with excellent personnel, the team set seven school records. Among these were Jeff Blum, 150' 10" in the discus; the 880-yard relay team with 1:34.4; and Mike Czarniecki who set two records in the 120-yard low and 180-yard high hurdles with runs of 14.7 and 20.2 seconds.

The Spartan harriers, coached by Mr. Robert H. Hood, climaxed a sparkling season in November by capturing third place in the Montgomery County AA Meet out of 12 schools. First place went to Springbrook; second, to Walt Whitman. Then, climaxing the already successful season, WJ avenged its third place finish to Whitman by defeating them for second place in the County division of the State Meet at Western Maryland College. The Spartans, led by Rich McKee with 15 points, finished sixth of 29 AA schools in the entire state.

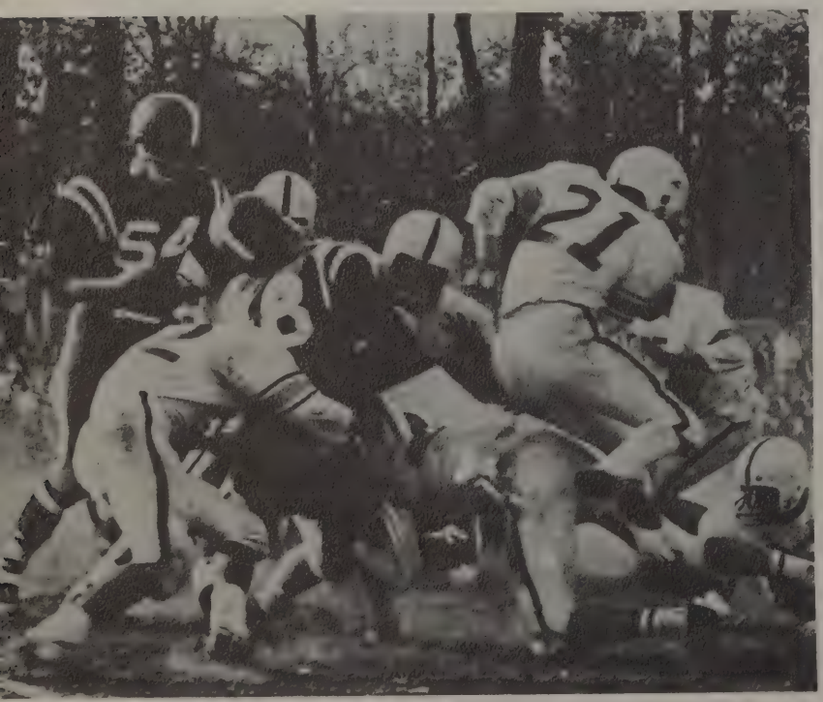
Stout Defense Carries Punchless Spartans; Final Shutouts End Season's Frustration

Promising a bright future, Junior Halfback Bill Martin (48) takes a pitchout from quarterback Bill Tomb and sprints around his left end for an eight-yard gain. In one of its best games, the Green Machine rolled to a 13-0 shutout victory over the Whitman team.

Center Wynn Poole (54) watches the action as Bill Martin's (48) gallop off-tackle is thrown back by Whitman defenders.



Defensive backs Bill Tomb (12) and Les Guthman (26) stop a Sherwood back after a long run as the Spartans dropped the decision.

A stout defense was the key to the Spartan eleven's mediocre success. Coaching the 4-5-1 record were Messrs. J. Paul Miller and Paul Tarasuk. Under Ron Horn, captain, co-captains were Chip Carter and Bill Tomb the first part of the season; Glen Holtje and Gary Page, the second half. Led by End Holtje and Tackle Tony Negus, the defensive unit sparked.

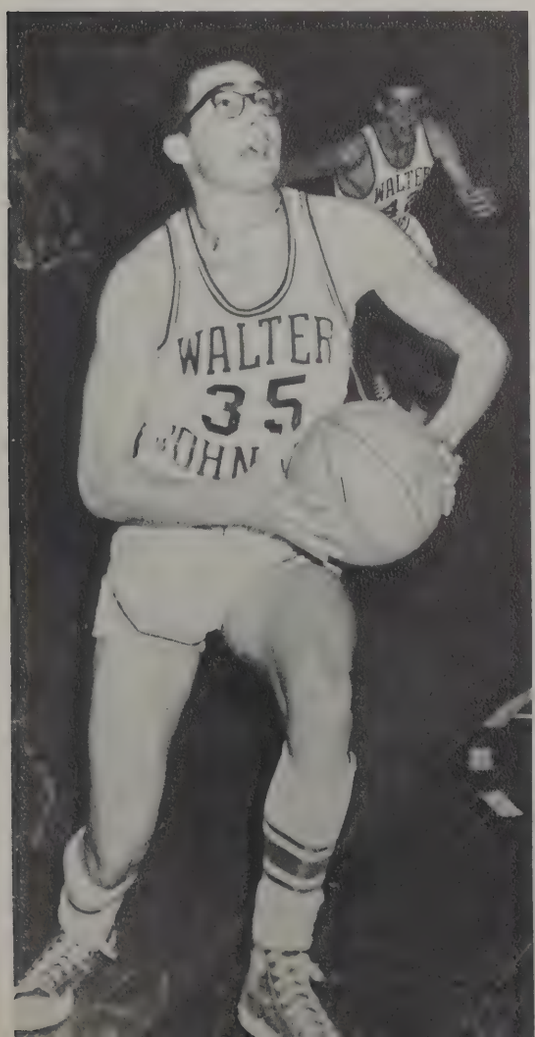
Hustle was the strongpoint of the Spartan Cagers' attack this year. Faced with a lack of height except for 6'-8" Rocky Crosswhite, the team relied on speed and hot shooting to carry them to a fourth place finish. Under the coaching of Mr. James Gilmore, the team came back from a deficit record to capture five of their last eight games behind the torrid shooting of Eddie Compton and Crosswhite's rebounding. Dan Kiddon, a junior playing for the injured Crosswhite late in the season, gave the Spartans a shot in the arm with his amazing ability to clear the boards. Coupled with the high scoring of Alan Feld, Doug Sentlinger, and Phil Corddry, the Green Machine rolled to easy double victories over area rivals, Walt Whitman and B-CC, and finished the season by venturing into the Prince George's County AA League and crushing High Point. This year's 11-8 overall record and 8-8 League work showed a slow but sure measure of improvement over last year's 10-9 record.

Varsity Basketball: front row: D. Sentlinger, B. Hecker, E. Compton, B. Park; second: M. Whalin, J. Kiddon, A. Feld, G. Meehan, B. Edwards; third: A. Swendiman, N. Hillery, S. Sessoms, R. Crosswhite, P. Blundell, and D. Stephenson dribbled and shot their way to a winning season. Key double victories over B-CC and Walt Whitman contributed heavily to the Spartans' fourth place finish in the Montgomery County AA League standings. Though the WJ five suffered a shoot slump during the middle of the season, they practiced hard and came back with a strong, high-scoring performance over Northwood. Rocky Crosswhite, the Spartans 6-8 hot-shot forward, led the Green's attack throughout most of the season; however, his late season ankle injury dropped the scoring load on Eddie Compton's shoulders. Eddie came through with a brilliant 32-point performance against the Vikings.



Right: Junior Guard Doug Sentlinger shoots a jump shot from the foul line over the outstretched arms of a Peary opponent. Left: Alan Feld finds himself all alone as he drives in for a lay-up against Northwood. Though the Spartans led most of the way and achieved one of their highest point totals of the season, the Indians tied the game with 30 seconds left and eked out an overtime victory. A major factor in the outcome of this contest was that Rocky Crosswhite, superlative Spartan center, injured his ankle early in the second quarter and was unable to play the rest of the game. Rocky's injury proved to be so serious that he returned to the starting lineup for only the final two games of the '64-'65 season.

M. C. Tournament		Fourth

The Spartan matmen, coached by Mr. Frank Kowalski, fought hard to achieve their third consecutive Montgomery County Championship. Costly losses to Springbrook and Gaithersburg, however, kept the wrestlers from their goal. The Spartans' opening loss to the Trojans immediately put them on the defensive. Yet they came back strong to win their next six matches in a row and once again WJ was a serious title contender. At this point, illness struck; the team faced its crucial test against Springbrook at half strength. Although the match was close, the Blue Devils downed WJ and captured their first championship.

Spartan 154 pound wrestler, Duncan McDougall, struggles to gain control from his Northwood opponent. Duncan lost and WJ came out on the short end of a 34-10 score.

Matmen Wrestle Way into Title Picture; Loss to Springbrook Costs Championship

Locked in the grasp of his Northwood opponent, 138-pound wrestler, Bob Carlson, fights to escape from the bottom of the referee's position. Bob escaped, but eventually lost a close decision. However, his other efforts assisted the Spartans to a 7-3 record.

Glen Holtje buries his chin in his opponent's back and struggles to turn him over and register one of his six pins during the regular season. Glen, who went undefeated throughout his schedule in the 165-pound class, played a major role in the Spartans' attempt to capture their third consecutive title. Though their bid fell short because of losses to the Springbrook Blue Devils and to the Trojans of Gaithersburg, Glen's wrestling provided a perpetual bright spot.

Younger brothers outshone the Varsity in a season of skillful maneuvering. JV Football, under Mr. Thomas Alberghini and Mr. James Kline, and wrestling, under Mr. Frank Kowalski and Bill Helz, '62, took firsts while JV Basketball, under Mr. Walter Madden, was a runner-up. In pursuit of these victories, the teams exercised ingenuity that recorded undefeated seasons and football and wrestling County Championships. During the football game with B-CC, the Barons had the ball but the Spartan line pushed its opponents so far back that a Green end blocked a kick which later bounced behind the line. Guard Kurt Weinlein pounced on the ball, winning, 6-0. Basketball JV won 15 out of its 18 games.

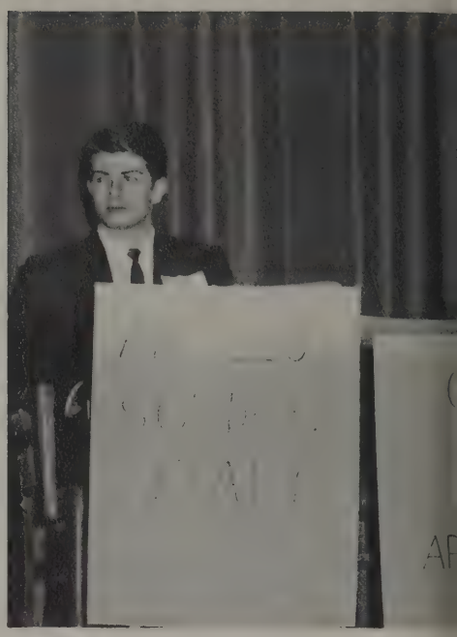
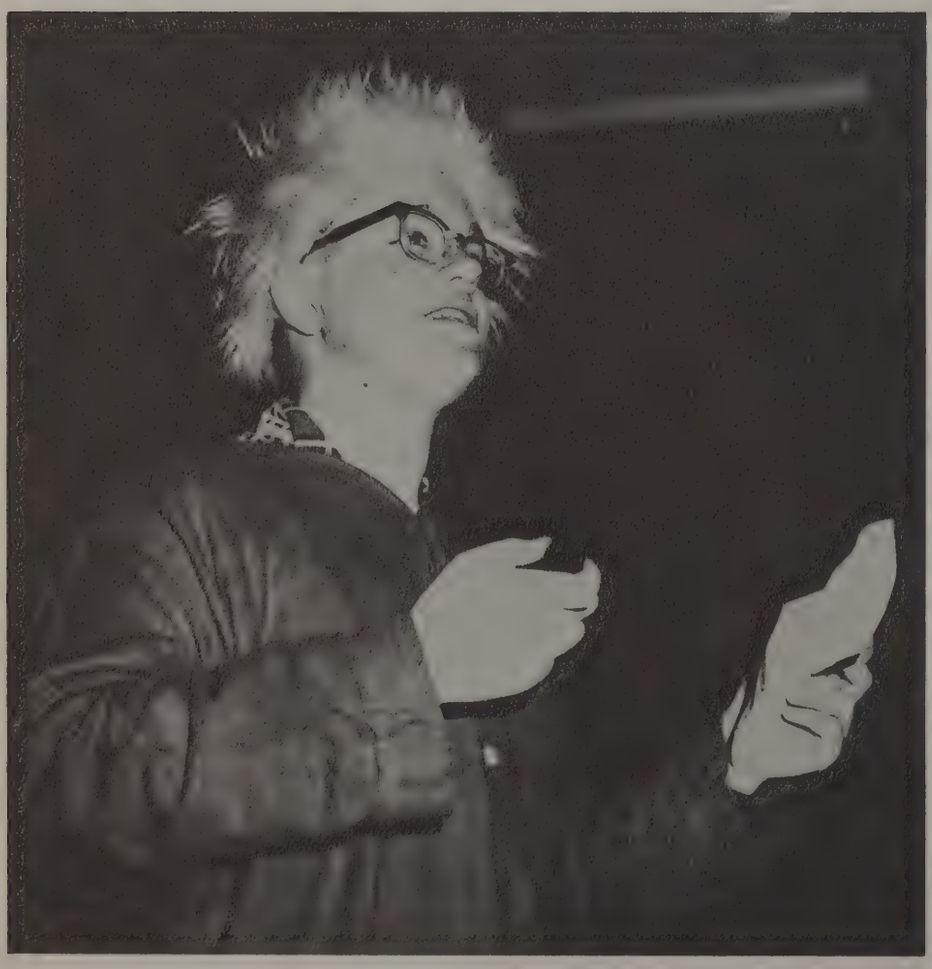
New Year As Hoots



Decked out in his best party dress, Lloyd Etheridge, who served as slave for a night at the Lop Year Heap, surveys the other Dogpatch-style decorations including Jubilation Cornpone's statue.



After waiting only for the end of mid-semester exams, Spartans took full advantage of a new year for more and different activities. The first order of business, however, was the mid-year re-election of SCA reps. For the first time homerooms were able to evaluate their representatives' service and elect new ones if necessary.

Wise seniors let out a mass hoot of relief after exams with their Hootenanny Jamboree on January 24. Including celebrated groups like the Winds, the hoot gave seniors a chance to sing, dance, or listen at pleasure.

The month of February brought even more in the way of excitement. Under the direction of Mr. Stephen Perialas, the German and Dance Clubs, the Orchestra, and the Opera Workshop presented Wiener Abend, A Night in Vienna. Dr. Ingo Mussi, Cultural Affairs of the Austrian embassy, attended the tribute to Austrian music.

Elections Evaluate SCA Reps' Mettle Emit To Sound Off Relief at Folksing

Angelo Scuderi, Sigrid Baner, Wolfgang Voegeli, and Jennifer Boxwell acquaint WJ seniors with their homes at the International Week assembly.

The Share Drive finally arrived, bringing new money raising-projects. A morning hootenanny, waitressing by Keyettes and Dorians during the lunch shifts, a record sale, and a Penny Plop tree all helped collect funds. The most successful event, though, was the Lop Year Heap, which capped the week on February 29.

Theatrically-minded students attended the Senior Class Play, Blithe Spirit, by Noel Coward. A dazzling cast presented the antics of backfiring occult experiments.

Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stayed these workers from the swift completion of the new wing of classrooms and the girls gymnasium.

Chris Wellons, Betty Walker, Taylor Pohlman and Fran Herman succumb to Laurel Winkler's skill as she conjures up a blithe spirit during a séance. Audiences roared at this Senior Class Play, directed by Mr. S. Perialas.

Ed Tabor, Ray Popkin, and John Cobb, SCA presidential candidates, and Ron Winkler, Bruce Jones, and Dick Bigelow, vice-presidential candidates, mull over their election prospects during their assembly. The candidates for the five SCA offices, although numbering thirteen this year, each presented a speech to their fellow students after introductions by Will Gray, seated at right. John and Dick were elected when approximately sixty-five per cent of the student body turned out to vote during lunch period.

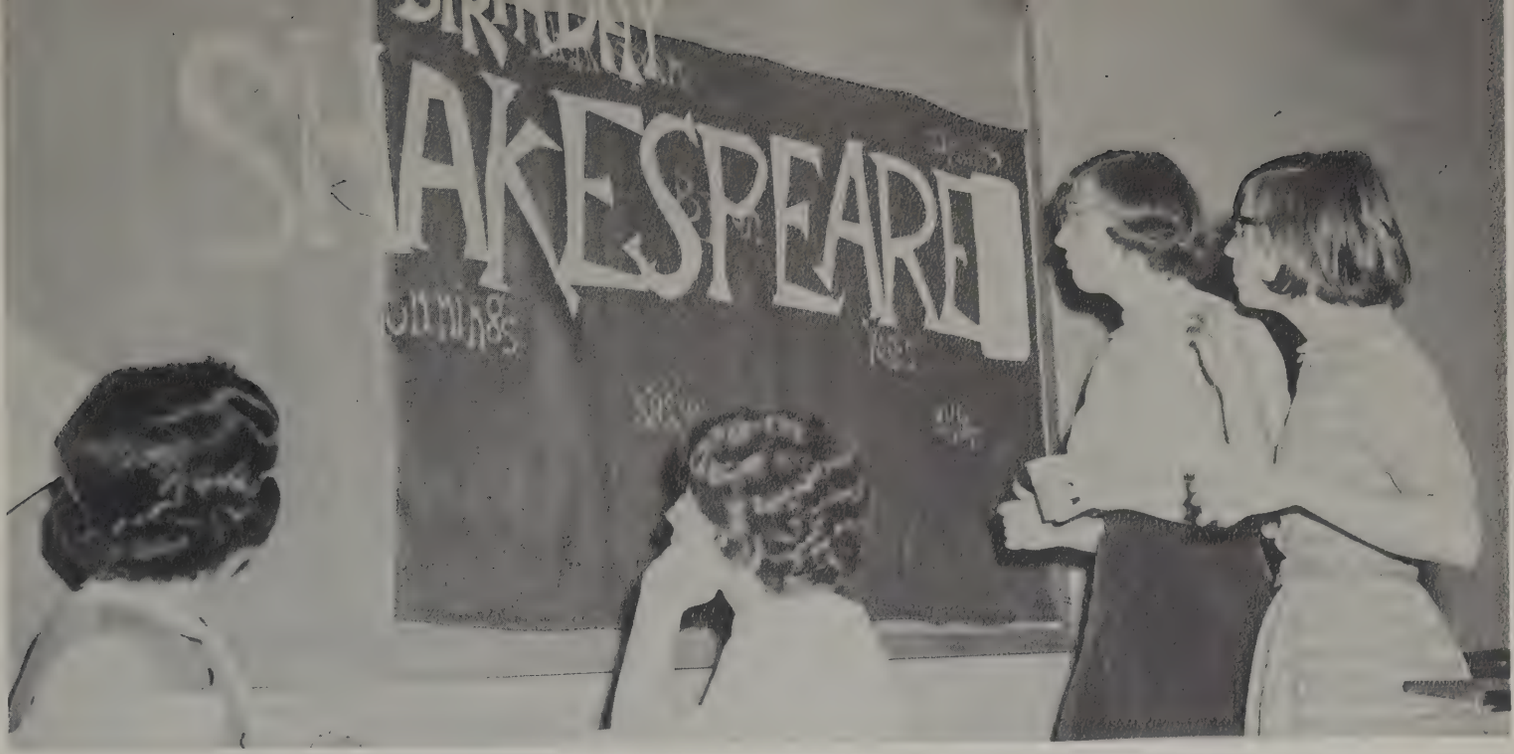
Mad frugs, masses of floral decoration, and swishing gowns all lent a lively touch to Primavera. This junior-senior prom far surpassed its predecessors in originality. During band intermissions, Jean Perry danced, and later a barbershop quartet serenaded the Spartan audience. Tables arranged around the dance floor in the gym instead of in the cafeteria and a fountain in the open courtyard were other innovations.

April infused such fighting spirit in Spartans that for the third year the school captured the Maryland State Forensic championship in extemporaneous speaking. Coached by Mrs. Virginia Hall and Miss Marilyn Price, Howard Matloff placed first; Ron Winkler, third; Carol Malmi, Honorable Mention.

At a Pan-American Day assembly, juniors and seniors glimpsed Latin music and dancing. Directed by Mr. Stephen Perialas, students from South America and Dance Club members performed in native costumes. A new singing group, the Chamber Singers, made their debut with a modern South American number, Arbole, Arbole.

Returning Haverford's 1964 visit to WJ, the Spartan Concert Band spent a weekend in Haverford, Pennsylvania, comparing notes and playing in concert with their counterparts.

Assuming her flowery throne as queen of the Junior-Senior Prom on April 18, Janette Schindell beams delightedly on her Spartan subjects. Chicken wire, crepe paper, and Kris Moeller's magic touch transformed the gym into a garden.



Pausing during their wild celebration of Shakespeare's four hundredth birthday, Jane Luckom, Laurie Hall, Julie Misegades, and Sherry Thomas pay homage to the Bard. This fete was the highlight of studying Julius Caesar and four Shakespearean comedies.

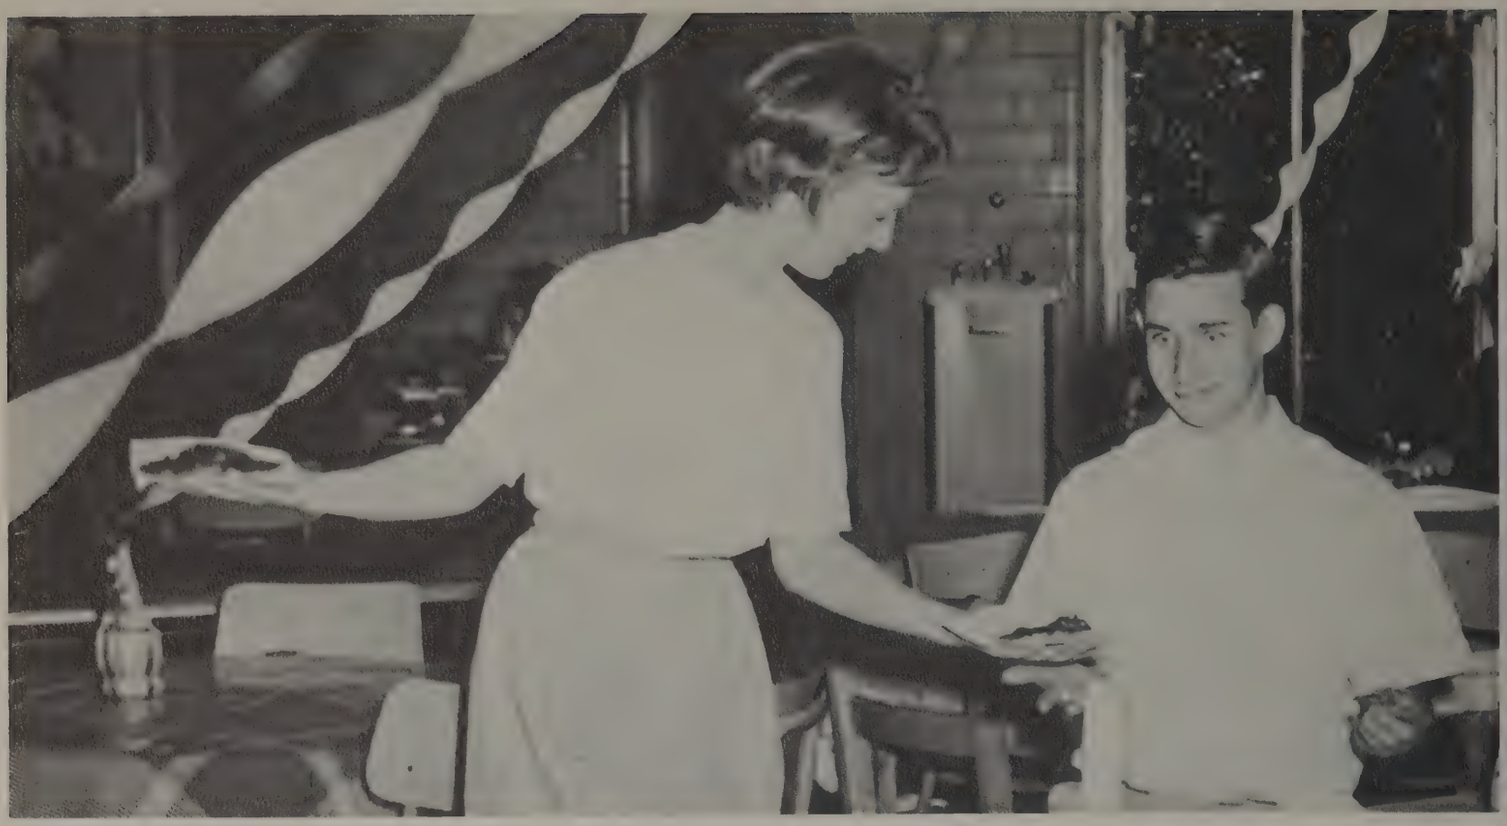
Primavera Snares Spritely Spring Spirit As Forensic Experts Win State Acclaim

Shook up physically and humorously Mrs. Elizabeth Hall and Mrs. Alice Washer defy formal pedagogical tradition to raise faculty cheers with Kathy Holmes. Spectators cheered their debut at the annual faculty-varsity basketball game.

Sara Nunez clips through the Spanish dance, Paso Doble, at the Pan-American Assembly. Each South American participant dressed in his native costume and presented his own nation's flag. Mrs. Wright acted as the consultant on authenticity.



It's hard to say which Rick Barse appreciates more, pizza or Mary Pratt. The Latin Club multiplied its pizza booths at the 1964 Activity Fair to meet a growing popular demand. Parlors were in three different locales at the school, served by a main kitchen.

Gracie Shinn (Martha Brennan) denounces Tommy Djilas (John Porter) for the explosion of a fire cracker in Act I, Scene 5, onstage, but the whole cast is responsible for the explosion of laughter and applause which greeted each scene of the Music Man, high point of the spring drama season. The backstage crews, cast, and leads, Betsy Sherman and Doug Baker, gave Mr. Stephen Perialas smooth and successful performances.

Sophisticated senior boys as well as girls succumbed to handsome, eloquent Jim Kruse in his bid for the class presidency.

Marvelous Month of May Serves Purpose: Election, Illusory Vacations, Pretenses

Respectively nonchalant, tense, and self-confident, Julian Karpoff, Harriet Ritvo, and Bruce Jones mentally prepare for another bout of "It's Academic." Selected in competitive auditions by the television studio, these three represented the school in the quiz show.

May was merveilleux!

It anticipated November when junior and senior officers campaigned.

It was a taste of vacation at the Activity Fair when French cuisine, pizza, cotton candy, and a later production of scenes from the Miracle Worker starring Laurel Winkler and Susie Sarles tempted the crowds.

It was make-believe when, following Brigadoon, Vagabond King, and Finian's Rainbow, Music Man was the fourth annual musical.

Angling for fun at the Activity Fair, youthful visitors delighted in the Senior Tri-Hi-Y's fishpond. The bazaar incorporated not only such annual events as the Keyette auction and Publications' used book sale, but also innovations like the Senior Class' Penny Arcade. Hungry patrons found a meal at the Spanish Club restaurant or Gallic snacks at the French cafe.

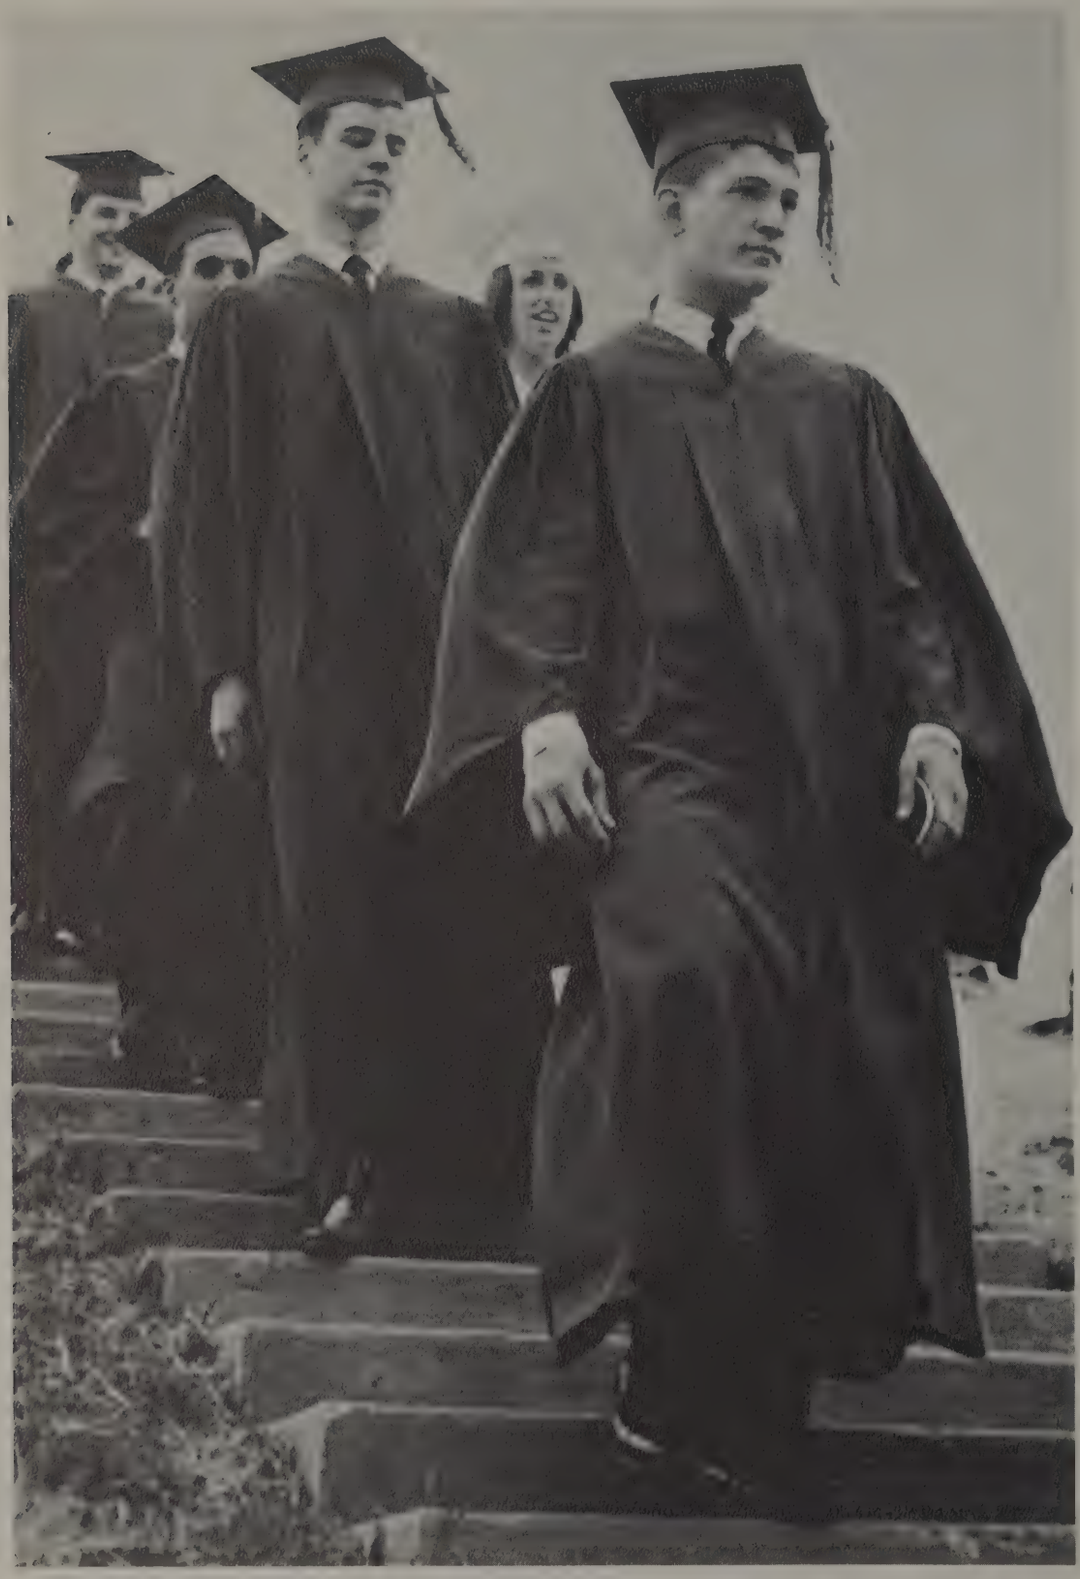
Graduates Tenderly Take Leave of School Before Summery Entertaining, Cool Drama

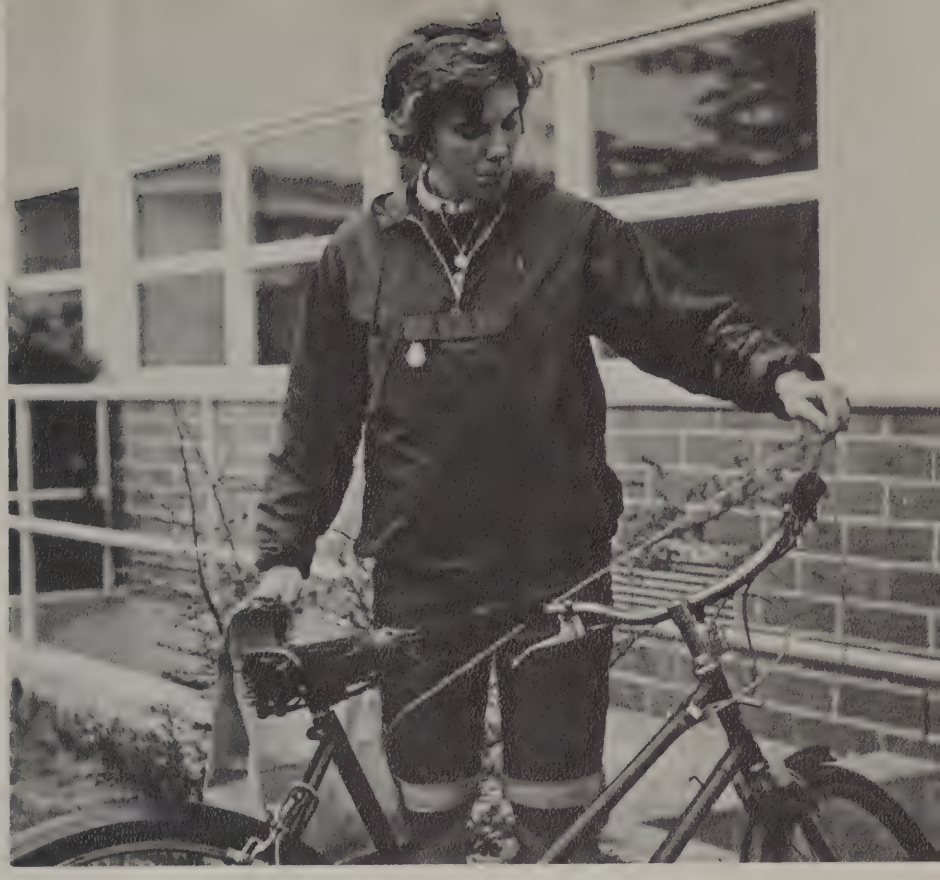


The jubilant Class of '64, led by Stephen Algire and Mike Adrianse, steps down to graduation ceremonies and long-anticipated diplomas on their way up to futures of college and jobs.

Happiness is dancing at a Senior Prom, smile Bobbie Baker and Chris Wellons.

Thai-oriented King Dave Harper rejects British Betsy Sherman's struggles to "civilize" him.

Engrossing Rolf Hill, senior vice-president, is the All-American, Medalist book which totaled 995 points of 1,000.



On senior bike day, a mid-Senior Week highpoint, students on wheels like Dodie Chaffee exercised their trusty, if somewhat rusted, bikes.

Everyone turns saccharine in June. Young love blooms, graduating seniors become tender over leaving the school they have taken in rough stride, and the promise of summer releases a tendency to kick over the traces.

Soberly enough, however, seniors heard Arizona Congressman John Rhodes speak at Commencement June 12.

Maryland Day June 14 at the New York World's Fair saw selected music and drama groups perform at the Maryland Pavilion. Students complained generally over the trip arrangements, but they enjoyed the Fair. Each one going had been required to fund the project by selling five tickets, at $2 each, to a special performance of "Maryland, My Heritage." This pageant, written by Principal Earl P. Schubert, had the premier of its first half in the fall. Mr. Schubert completed the history from the Civil War to the present for Maryland Day.

On Aug. 13, 14, 15, indefatigable Mr. Stephen Perialas shepherd summer students through the green pastures of outdoor drama made greener by a rainstorm.

Faculty Moans Equal to Student Anguish At Pre-Labor Day Opening in September

It was a toss-up whether faculty moans were more grievous than student anguish over school's opening before Labor Day. Having begun, however, everyone turned to with a will to make the school's 185 days shipshape. The Junior Class began by welcoming students back at the SS Walter Johnson dance, setting a new policy whereby students attended with a date or alone.

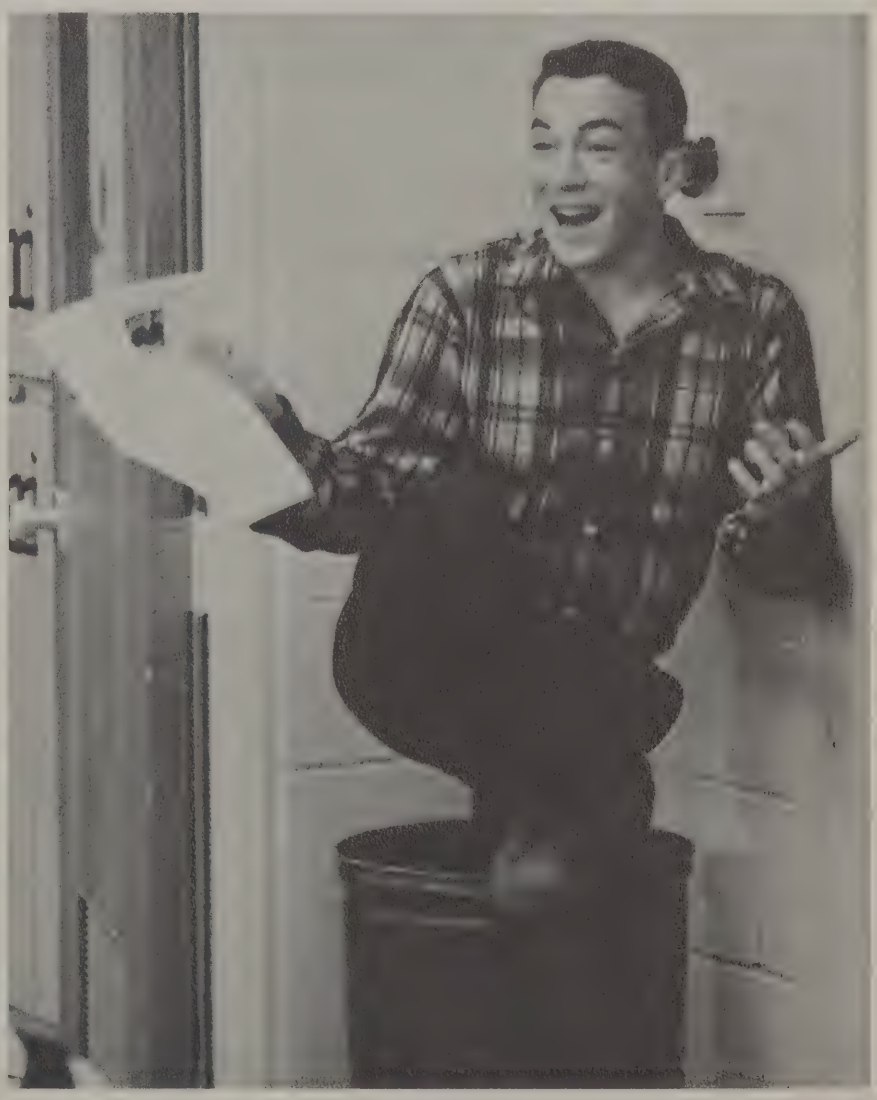
The school stirred its peppy stumps at the usual rallies; publications representatives went into action on Pitch sales. The American Field Service exchange student, Irma Niemi, found a hearty welcome here. Seniors lorded it over underclassman from their exclusive senior lounge.

General good-will and alert enthusiasm, scattered in enclaves at the Pep Rally, rewarded cheerleaders' efforts before the year's first football game with Springbrook.

"Jim Kruse bought the Pitch late!" reveals Darla Dunlop as she, Dotti Osborne, and Ginny Smyers tally sales. The staff, aided by well-aimed scowls from Sponsor Mrs. Wittman, terrified 31 per cent of the students into subscribing; 69 per cent went on borrowing.

"Light but fast and a great bunch of boys," grins Coach Miller as he introduces the team to the student body at the year's first pep rally on Sept. 11. Spartans suppressed their spirit until the game the following day when they set it loose to cheer a victory.

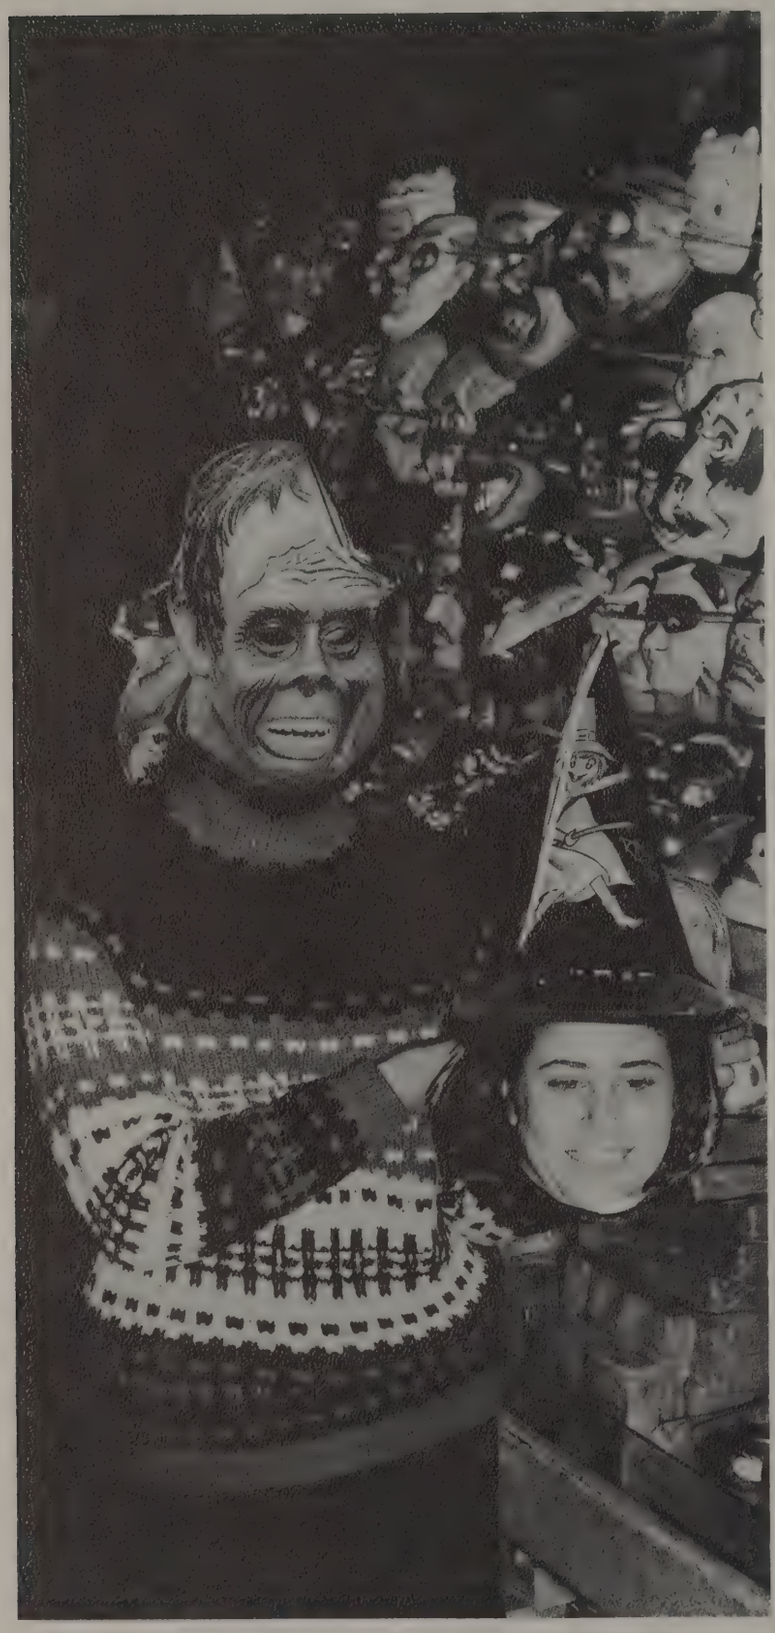
Trading in her Finnish "oppikoulu" for an American high school, Irma Niema became the Spartan American Field Service Exchange student for 1965. She was one of 51 students chosen from 500 applicants. From her native Helsinki she went to Rotterdam where she joined, on a ship bound for New York, 1,000 AFS colleagues whose excitement equalled hers in anticipating experiences which would make up for a creditless school year. Irma and her newfound friends ventured into the New World singing "America." Irma credits a knowledge of Swedish to her Swedish mother, but English and German result from the 16 courses each year which constitute the program in Finnish schools.



While national politicians sank to a new low, Publications Rep. Andy Lippman descended no lower than his trash basket to get across his sales pitch. The subscription campaign for the Pitch continued through September and October totaling a 692-subscription base for a weekly circulation of 1,000 copies.

October, 1964

Faculty Theatrics Evoke Mixed Reaction At Start of Month Which Ends in Horror



Losing her head in the excitement of Halloween, Barbara Kronstadt conjures up devilish tricks and delicious treats with other spooks.

Students in turn laughed with delight and cringed with embarrassment at their teachers' interpretation of The King and I which introduced the month of October. The faculty was making thrifty use of the sets created for the student presentation in the summer. The proceeds went toward the Campus Improvement Fund for landscaping the school grounds and for building a sports stadium.

There was something for everyone. Sophomores found their election of class officers enlivened by a tie for the vice-presidency between Alice Horton and Judi Hall who won when they held a run-off. Juniors bought rings; seniors sat for their portraits.

Beat B-CC Week collapsed to three days because the Maryland State Teachers Convention came Oct. 16 and 17.

The school ate free doughnuts and drank cider on the house at the Student Council's "All Night Nail Bite" Halloween when authentic terror stalked during Frankenstein and Dracula films.

A poll gave President Johnson 65 per cent of student non-voters' votes over Senator Goldwater.

Tenth graders who ventured onto the sacred square paid dearly for their offense on Polish-the-Plaque Day, one of the frivolities of Beat B-CC Week. Becoming initiated Spartans, Lynne Pace and fellow sophomores shed polish, elbow grease, and amiability to bring the plaque to its shining glory. Further rallying included an elaborate funeral for the unfortunate Baron. A stuffed counterpart hung dejectedly in the cafeteria throughout the three-day week, inspiring enthusiastic spirit that not even six-weeks exams, given during those activity-packed days, could dampen.

King James Walsh pours over King James' creation of the world, tells his Thai version to his English governess, during The King and I.

"I now pronounce you an official Spartan," says the Trochenbrot representative as he slips the magic ring on Junior Margaret Nelson's finger.

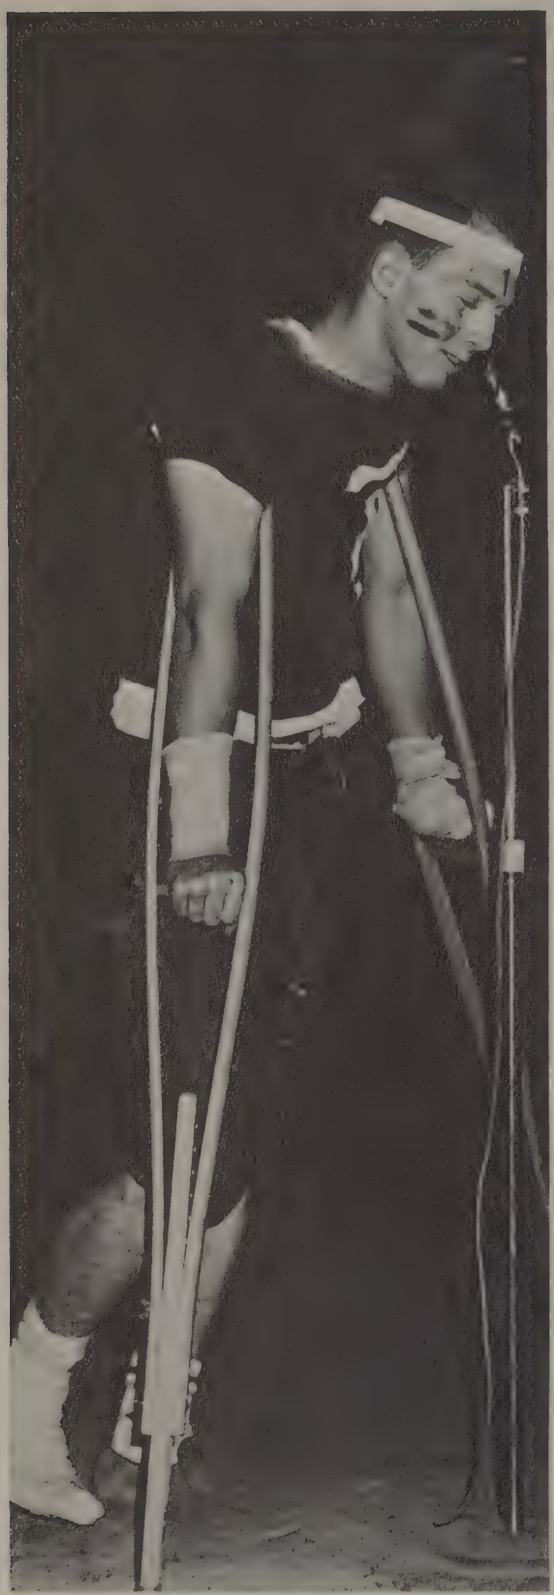
Oriental Fans Organize Teahouse Play; Monstrous Effort Wins Giant for Juniors



"Burn Biggy," the crowd screamed as beaten, battered, and bruised Dick Bigelow portrays a Northwood Indian in the light of the homecoming bonfire.

Dorians Dorothy Montgomery and Carol Dodd blend dexterity and good will to mass produce toys, games, and tray favors at the service clubs' workshop.

Officially crowned, after reigning all afternoon at the vanquishing Spartans' Homecoming football game, radiant Carol Dodd shines on Harvest Moon Dance.

Returning to Salem witch and voo doo doll rituals, the spirited artless dragged, beat, and finally cast into the fire, the effigy of a Northwood Indian. These sacrificial festivities foreshadowed reducing Northwood in the homecoming game on the next day.

Election fever that saw Lyndon Johnson President calmed under Veterans' Day which highlighted American Education Week, Nov. 9-13. The entire student body memorialized America's war dead. Some parents accepted the school's invitation to visit that day.

The Jolly Green Giant towered over students gathering cans of food in the annual drive. Emulous juniors won the monstrous prize, collecting over 5,000 of the 13,397 total.

The cast of Teahouse of the August Moon presented two performances, Nov. 20 and 21.

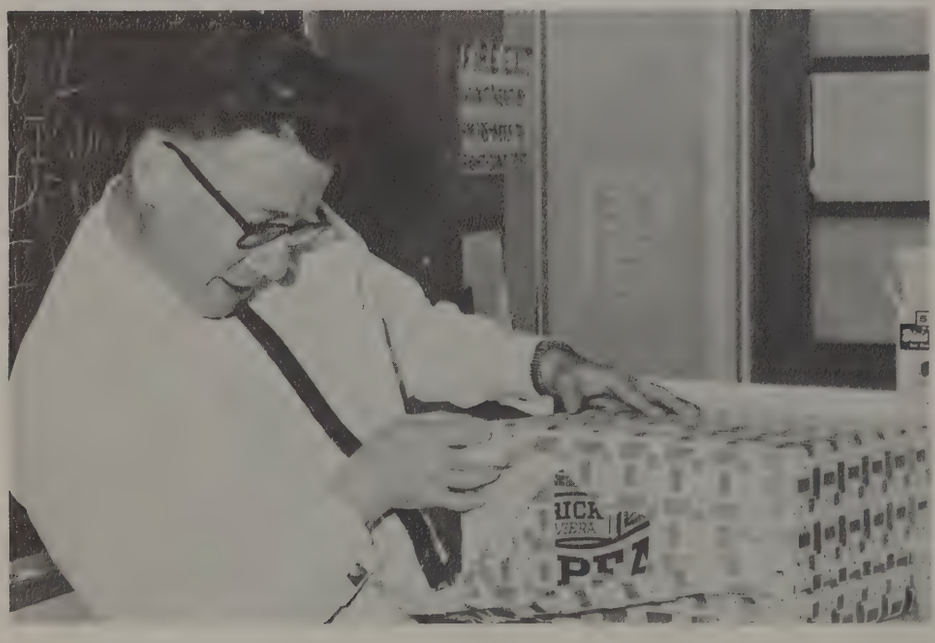
The walls of the teahouse, erected by carpenter Allan Woodward and the Okinawan villagers, were less firm than the acting talent that went into the successful play.

Snoball queen Kathy Offut's oh's and ah's to admirers Carol Scott and Janet Warfield demonstrated appreciation of more than her newly awarded Raggedy Ann doll. Elected by the entire student body, Kathy's coronation followed a promenade to her throne.



This year, December became a season of beginnings rather than of endings... Sixty-one all-around seniors were selected members of the Honor Society on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service, character, and citizenship, climaxing three years of superior achievement.

Harbinger of Yuletide spirit, the annual Christmas Concert introduced the new Brass Choir, directed by Mr. Gilbert Muir.

Speaking at an assembly describing the Honor System, Mark Evans encouraged its innovation at this school.

Mr. James Walsh's cup overfloweth as his European History class presents him with holiday champagne.

With Miss Margaret Kauffman, English Department head, the motivation and the organizing genius, 900 students in 19 buses jounced from school to a Washington theater on Dec. 11 to see "The Finest Hours," the movie on Winston Churchill.

Last Month of Year Swings Spirits High To Match Heightened Hearts, Flying Feet

The "Boys in the Dark Room" (and Kris) were at it again, releasing jinnis from bottles to decorate their door for the holidays. Kent Gallagher and his cohorts, sometimes genius and sometimes generative irritants and most often both at once, spent spare moments brewing onion soup and poetry to amuse Sponsor Wittman in pre-deadline hours.

Lacking only strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," new Honor Society member Kent Briddell marches toward the scene of his induction. Candy Kovacic and other Honor Society members escorted new inductees and their parents to their respective seats. With PA loudspeakers on in many classrooms, juniors and sophomores, though not invited to the assembly, could hear Mr. Schubert's speech and Concert Chorus' performance. After the formal ceremonies, members, old and new, and parents munched cookies at a tea. Student discussions and Pitch editorials for the first time questioned the Honor Society traditional surprise announcement of inductees as meaningless.

Soothing Music, Presidential Inauguration Exorcise Examined Students' Exhaustion

In a play adaptation of Lewis Caroll's book, Alice, alias Theresa Higgins, comforts the White Queen, Sandy Searles, whose mind works both ways and who can remember things before they happen. Alice soon learns to expect the improbable and to accept the impossible in this land where "it takes all the running you can do to stay in the same place." Directed by Jonathan Hadary, "Alice in Wonderland" was one of the three one-act plays (the others were "the Valiant and scenes from "Inherit the Wind") produced by the Drama Club.

As prospects for a snow day evaporated, the School Board came to the aid of students already weary despite only 12 days of school after vacation. The School Board voted Inauguration Day a legal holiday to let students view ceremonies downtown or on television.

Thankful students returned to the tension and pressure of finishing up the semester with exams, the student equivalent of parental nemeses: taxes. The North Carolina State Band on concert tour provided seniors and members of the bands and orchestra with one of their few relaxations during this time.

During the concert, an alert, if sadistic, Windup photographer was on-the-spot, two inches away, to flash a startled trumpeter's expression.

Juniors, studying Hemingway's works in English classes, viewed a documentary film on his life. One of the attractions was the bullfighting scene.

Not without reason do opponents say the school sits in a "cow pasture." Farm land adjacent to the campus provides scenes like those from Constable for the viewing. Fortunately for the equipment, the steers (not cows) turn tail and run from the photographers, not towards them.

Windup photographer, Harry Luttermoser, was one of the students who saw the Inauguration Day parade. Here he catches President and Mrs. Johnson.

Mr. Henry C. Gregory, Area Director and a ready hand with a ready grin, considers the uncuddly kapok of Miss Kathryn Martin's Green Giant, mysteriously secured by her B-CC nephew and playfully presented. The traditional enmity between B-CC and WJ evaporates with Jolly Green Giant foolishness.

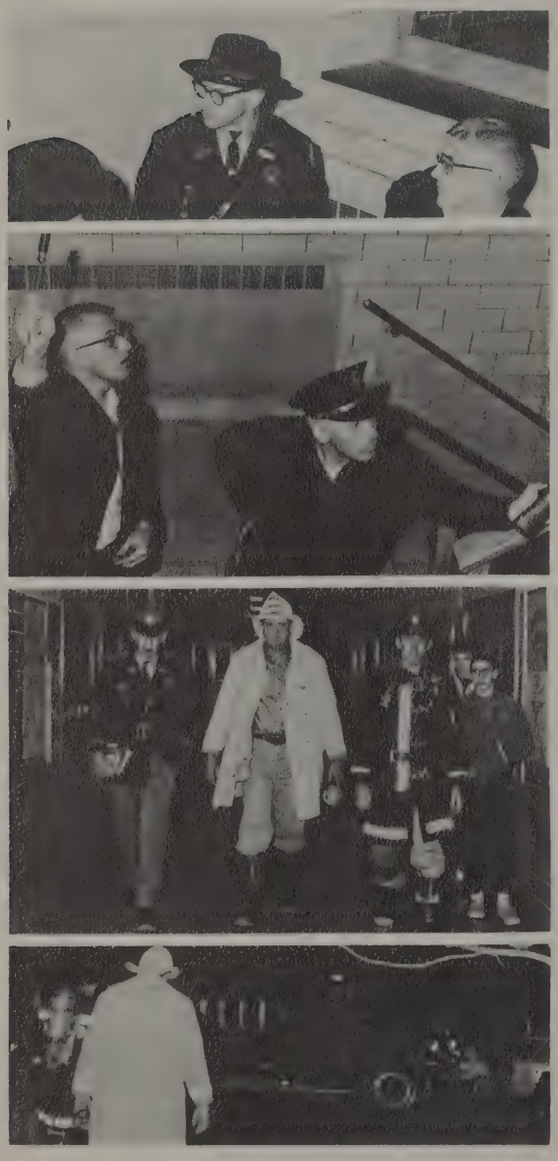
This trumpeter shows his stamina when suddenly confronted by Harry Luttermoser and camera during a solo performance. As one of the members of the North Carolina State Band, he played for a concert specially presented for seniors and instrumentalist students.

Their stop here was part of a tour including performances throughout Virginia and Maryland. For an impression which most bands do not leave, the band ended the concert by singing their college Alma Mater. Before leaving the band members attended a luncheon.

February, 1965

Bumpers Flouresce Pinkly with Auto Ban As Red Hearts Cheer School Sweethearts

Portraying a spirit of the classroom in the Variety Show, teachers Miss Mona M. King and Mr. William E. Schroeder demonstrate the joys of student life. Mr. C. H. Breedlove attempted to teach in a congested classroom in the faculty skit which included the flirt, the muscleman, the bookworm, and inevitably, the troublemaker. Several other take-offs found their way to the stage for the show. One was a lively imitation of the television show Shindig by Surfer Moses (Kris Moeller) and the Bullrushes (Susie Costello and Susie Kelly).

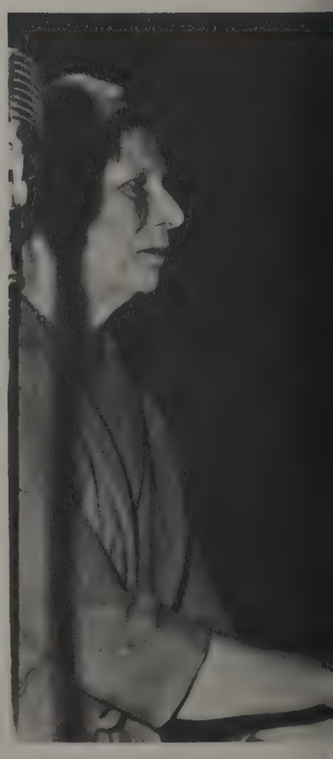


More than stage action enlivened the Feb. 6 Variety 65. Intermission saw fire engines clang to school as some hot-headed, enthusiastic lamebrain pulled the fire alarm. When a quick search revealed no flames, no bombs, no culprits, the audience returned to its seats. The climax to this fireless evening occurred as Varsity Club members, all male, in tights and net tutus, kicked up an original ballet. Show producer Jean Perry choreographed their tom cat pas de chats.

Usually a dead spot in the school calendar, Ground Hog Month turned hearty with Valentine's Day and so much activity that the school raced to keep up with it.

Pink bumper stickers indicated permission to drive to school after the County Board of Education's Driving Ban went into effect. From the State had come, in September, another requirement which required everyone in shops or labs to wear goggles. By February, this continuing source of bons mots had become a fixture. Equally amusing (for students) was the presentation at a principals' meeting of Mr. Earl P. Schubert's "Maryland, My Heritage" when the driver for a busload of student musicians missed his Route 495 exit and sped on to Virginia.

Dorians made two cents for the Heart Fund on each sweet sentiment they delivered on Valentine's Day.



To protect Jack Bryant and his fellows from flying splinters and sparks, the State required goggles this year for shop and laboratory classes.

Sharp, swift, sweet Editor-in-chief Nancy Braymer, swirling from job to job, covers the February deadline. line.

Mrs. Kathryn Porter presents beaming schoolwinner, Nancy Gatlin, with her DAR citizenship award.

Carol Malmi's essay that the voting age should be lowered to 18 earned a $250 scholarship to Dickinson College from WWDC and smiles from producer Neil Shulman.

Romantic endeavors transcended traditional hearts when music lovers enjoyed Soirée Romantique, a three-part program of instruments, dance and opera. The orchestra performed the overture to Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" and selections by Schubert and Mozart. Dance Club members folded gently into pliés like Little Swans and uncoiled through the Hungarian Dance from Swan Lake. High point of the program was the opera Students and Opera Associates members sang the second act with measselection from The Bartered Bride. ured vibrato but unmeasured enthusiasm.

Love turned to generosity in time for the annual Share Drive. Discount record sales, a morning hootenanny, and the Shareitable Shamrock Shindig made funds for charity.

The Varsity Debate squad's indisputable excellence earned permanent ownership of the County Forensic League sweepstakes trophy in another clean-up tournament at Wheaton High. Humorous interpretation was another school forte as Jonathan Hadary splintered judges' imperturbability to win the championship.

With girlish grace and poise, petite Powder Puff Cheerleader Carl Anderson lends exuberance to the junior team. The annual Powder Puff game, sponsored by GSA and coached by Varsity Club, called for an afternoon's switcheroo, during which junior and senior girls took out their tensions in one unusual basketball game. Backed by enthusiastic male cheerleaders, the juniors defeated the seniors, 22-12.

At the Quill and Scroll Banquet, Mr. Jack Anderson, Drew Pearson's assistant, charmed Miss Donna Mae Fitzgerald with his table conversation; the audience, with his formal speaking.

4610 East West Highway

Bethesda, Maryland

Miss Golda, owner and chief beautician of Golda's Salon, adds her personal touches to Eleanor Shook's coiffure. For three successful years, expert personnel have cut and set creative styles to satisfy every taste in hair fashions.

Blackistone Inc.

7351 Wisconsin Avenue

Bethesda, Maryland

Of 2,500 different kinds of plants from all over the world, Alden Waitt chooses a colorful chrysanthemum. Permanent dried flowers for interior decorating vie, too, for her notice at Blackistone, the company which has been selling flowers in the Washington area since 1898.

Junior Class

Les Guthman, President

Finally promoted from their lowly rank as sophomores, the juniors anticipate their senior year, when a lounge like this will be their own. The Junior Class won a reputation for a fresh outlook on school activities. Lifting the responsibility for the S. S. Walter Johnson from the shoulders of the SCA for the first time in the history of the school, the juniors continued their policy of a new approach by making the dance a stag or drag party. Very successful, it netted enough to start the class of '66 off to an affluent year.

Mark Motor Company

1125 Rockville Pike
Rockville, Maryland

Although Mark Motors has been in Rockville for only seven years, they have earned the title of Montgomery County's only exclusive Mercury and Mercury Comet dealer. Barbara Kronstadt and Stu Sessoms appreciate the lines of a 1965 Mercury in their lot, calling to mind the Lincoln that inspired it.

Macco of Bethesda

7749 Old Georgetown Road
Bethesda, Maryland

Selecting water colors with Karen Hirsch's assistance, fascinated Andrea Grant studies the choice of art materials at Macco's. Pastels, permanent pigments, and mosaic tiles are available, and custom framing is a specialty.

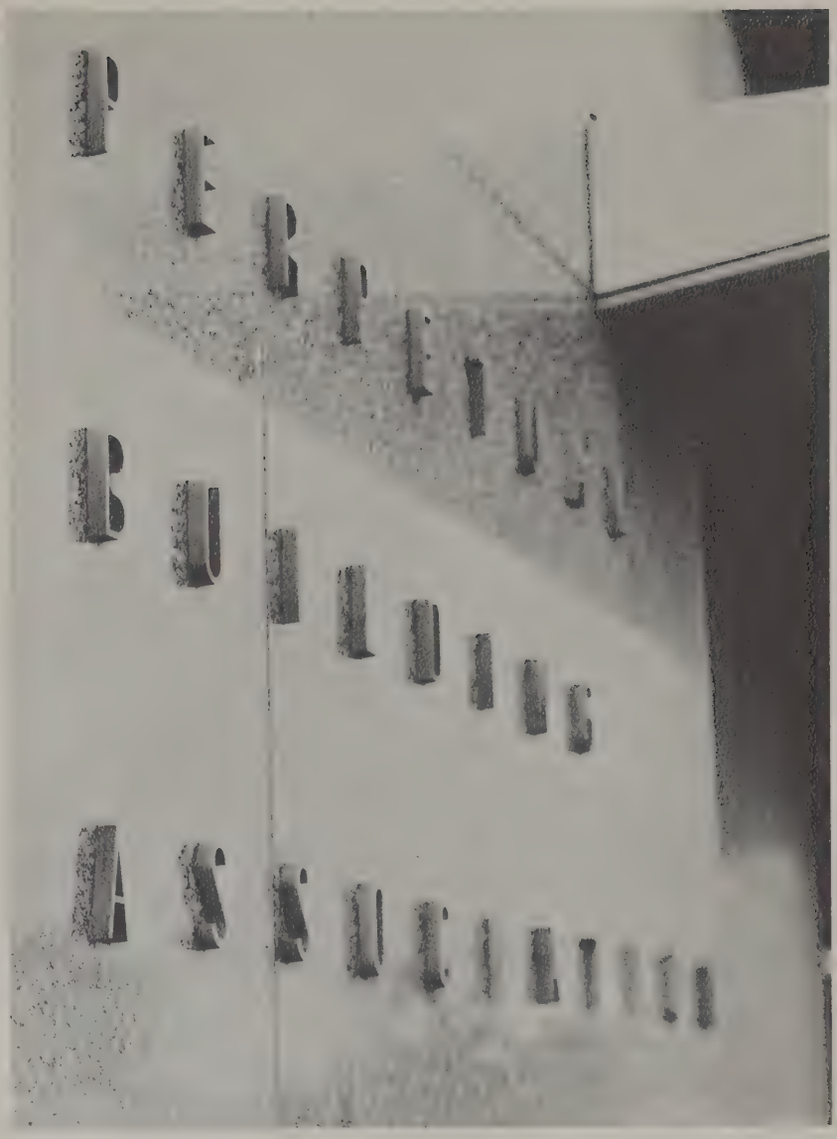
Perpetual Building & Loan Association

7401 Wisconsin Avenue
Bethesda, Maryland

Any way you look at it, you'll find that Perpetual is well qualified to serve both savers and home buyers. With assets of more than a half billion dollars, Perpetual is the largest institution of its kind in the East.

Dividends to savers are paid every three months which means compounded dividends. The Bethesda office of Perpetual at 7401 Wisconsin Avenue is convenient to many but for Spartans, a branch at Walter Johnson makes for added convenience.

Here we see Janet Inches and Cathy Carroll filling out a deposit slip for their savings addition.



Altemus Esso Servicenter

3745 University Boulevard

West Kensington, Maryland

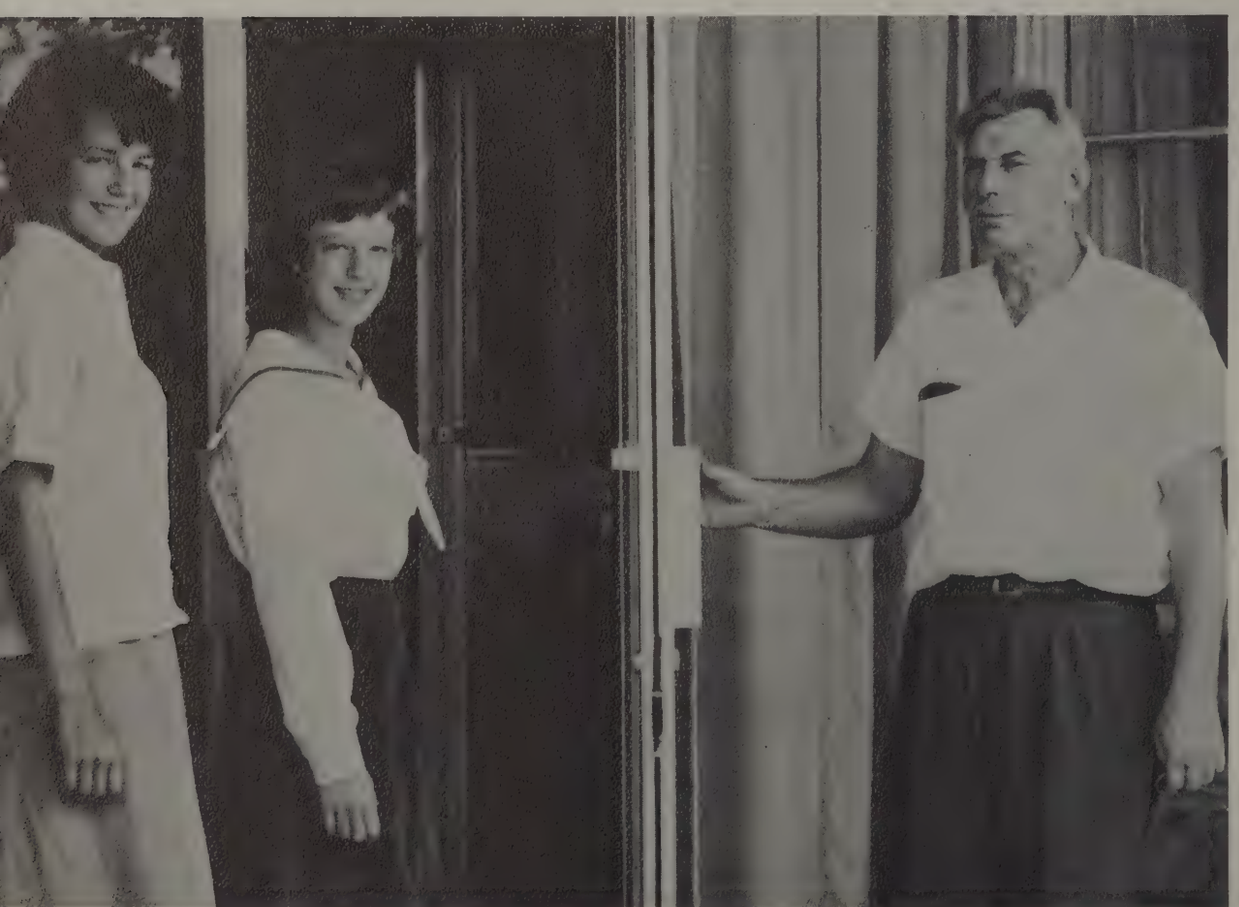
Woodward + Lothrop



Pepsi Cola Bottling Company

1906 Rockville Pike

Rockville, Maryland

Although the Rockville branch of the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company can produce 120,000 bottles of sparkling Pepsi per day, they still have time to welcome Susie Pyle and Mary Pratt. Built in April, 1957, this plant serves Montgomery County and Northwest Washington and is one of four in the Metropolitan Washington area. The main offices in Cheverly, Maryland, operate the largest plant, twice the size of the Rockville branch.

The company recently developed non-returnable bottles. Weight-watchers have the Cheverly center to thank for diet Pepsi, perfected after research of artificial sweeteners.

Besides producing Pepsi, the company participates in community activities. These include granting scholarships to Miss Maryland and most of the other contestants in the Miss America Pageant. The firm also donates an electric football scoreboard each year to a local high school. This year Walter Johnson is the grateful recipient of the $1,700 bonanza.

Whittlesey's Drug Store

7135 Wisconsin Avenue
Bethesda, Maryland

Years ago Walter Johnson relied on Whittlesey's Drug Store for all his prescriptions, remedies, and shaving supplies in addition to the cheerful conversation of his friends. Spartans Tina Silverman and Debbi Seither today find what they need at the same drug counter. With the aid of Mrs. Whittlesey, they have selected a bottle of delightful French spray cologne from the shelves of known brand cosmetics and toiletries. The store, a hub of Bethesda in the same building for 39 years, where friends often meet, also carries Briers ice cream by the cone or by the package, the latest issues of leading magazines from True Confessions to the New Yorker, and many newspapers, both local and out-of-town.

Specialty Shop

7450 Wisconsin Avenue
Bethesda, Maryland

Class of

Jim Kruse, President

"Repent of your messy cafeteria!" bellowed a ghostly Mighty Moo to the cowering Senior Class Council. As soon as the spectre of Moo disappeared into the mist, these awe-stricken class stalwarts descended en masse on the scattered trays and tetra-packs in Cafeteria B. Their benevolent overlords, led by Sir Earl Schubert, showed their immense pleasure at this vast improvement in dining affairs by finally granting a long-anticipated coke

Parklane Hosiery

Wheaton Plaza

Wheaton, Maryland

Pleased with the friendly atmosphere at Parklane Hosiery, Linda Sue Stetson helps Mary Beth Lewis select a pair of knee socks to match a new sweater. Mary Beth is confident of finding the right hue—how can she miss with so vast a selection?

Parklane also offers Danskin tights and leotards for both children and adults.

Of course the most important item sold is stockings, which are made specially for all the Parklane Hosiery stores in the well-known chain. They save their customers at least 36 per cent on all comparable items. These quality stockings come in high fashion colors but not at high fashion prices.

Established in 1943, this chain of stores is the largest exclusive retailer of hosiery in the entire country. Parklane serves in communities from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts, carrying over 75 styles of hosiery.

Wheaton's Parklane sometimes employs students as part-time salesgirls. Located where parking space is abundant, Parklane Hosiery is the place to purchase all kinds of under-the-shoe footwear.

machine to the ecstatic seniors. At last the elder Spartans could rest their aging bones while gently sipping cokes during luncheon or before or after grueling classes. Although the coke machine was the only Moo-inspired development in the new senior lounge, the enthusiasm unleashed resulted in united class efforts to collect 108 books of trading stamps. Dissatisfied with certain pieces of furniture with which the lounge originally made its debut, the seniors exchanged the trading stamps for some replacements.

Alexander's Florist

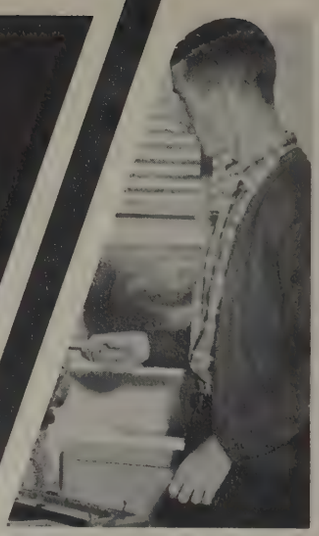
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Windup staff gratefully acknowledges the help of administration, faculty, and students. In particular it thanks Mr. Kenneth Tilton; Mrs. Doris Westwood; Mr. Emil Hrebenach; the Publications Representatives; Harris-Ewing for the pictures of Mr. Schubert, page 13, and of Mrs. Wittman, page 21; Lewis German for the basketball casual on page 183; and Linda Gibbs and Judy Strohmenger for their incomparable help every school morning in the Publications Office.



Walter Johnson's winning streak creates an enduring value as it touches and reflects among the students. In contributing to a formative period of their lives, it creates lasting implications for personal futures and for roles in community life. From this school, tomorrow's leaders in many fields will arise. These students will take part in the shaping and guiding of their worlds. Theirs will also be the responsibility of carrying on the tradition of the winning streak in all its aspects and assuring their own children the same quality of education. Through them the ideas of continuous intellectual growth will extend and expand to new dimensions.

Steve-

Don't forget Great Falls and Sugar Loaf & Ocean (chatter) City & the Prom & Alice's house & all the seances (I think that's how to spell it) & Alice & me & Bucie & homeroom & Ellen Echo & W. J. Be a good boy at camp in W. Va. this summer & don't forget to come to my wedding if I ever get around to it (it ain't no big thing - don't let Bucie see that).

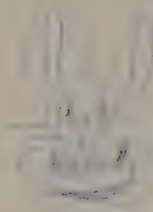
Bye

Love & XXXXX

Linda L.

Thanks for letting Doyle and myself double with you and al. I probably won't be able to repay you I will remember the time you must have complemented me. Best of luck at college but I doubt if you need it

Mike Huffman



Steve,
Sure has been swell
this year. Hope to see you
sometime in the future.
From your English, History,
Physics, golfing, bowling, and baseball partner.
